By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

"And now, Gentle Reader, before that I say
Farewell for the present, and wish you good day,
Attend to the moral I draw from my lay!"

Lloyd George appears to be getting ready to beat Mr. Hoover to it in repealing poverty.

* * * *

While Wall Street undertakes to make everybody a millionaire.

* * * *

If Capt. Burlingame's character witnesses had been divided into divisions and placed under the command of a Grand Marshal perhaps they could have passed a given point in the regulation two hours.

* * * *

Foreign Minister Briand couldn't have been any more enthusiastic for the Kellogg treaty to abolish all wars until the next one if his name had been on the title page instead of in a footnote.

* * * *

Curtis Wilbur lands a soft woolsack on the California bench—almost. However, we understand he will have a close friend in a high place in the next Administration.

* * * *

It is encouraging to learn that a European Princess still has $20,000 worth of jewelry left to lose.

* * * *

The Democrats of the House do a wise thing in making Jack Garner Minority Leader, and another one by keeping him on Ways and Means. Now give him also Garrett's place on Rules, for under such an arrangement the country might witness a return of concentrated leadership in the House, and, as a matter of fact, if John Garner should ever be elevated to the chair we should pick him as the one man in that body most likely to attempt a restoration of the Speakership, and to get away with it.

If he should fume and fuss and fret,
Surely it would vex us;
But no Republican will get
"Garner's goat of Texas."

* * * *

The "Tailors of Tooley Street" call the attention of the inaugural visitors to the voteless condition of the rest of the 500,000 people of Washington who aren't exercised about the matter in the least.

* * * *

Representative Woodrum, the humble Government clerk's friend, reveals how dumb Congress was a year ago, but oh, boy, how about today!

* * * *

If Congress had wanted to provide for the deportation of aliens violating the liquor laws why didn't it pass that kind of a law instead of a Woolworth Act—five and ten—under which a high school boy might be given a cruel term in prison for buying a pint of gin for a fraternity dance?

* * * *

Tom Heflin saunters out of the Democratic cloakroom and is flabbergasted to see De Priest in de Senate.

* * * *

We hear that the windows of Charlie Curtis' new Vice President's room in the Senate Office Building have been hung with red curtains! This needs a lot of looking into.

* * * *

President Coolidge prepares to "check out."

* * * *

Mr. Hoover outguesses the Washington correspondents and selects an unsuspected dirt farmer for Secretary of Agriculture.

* * * *

Official weather forecaster almost throws a wet blanket over the festivities.

* * * *

We can remember the time when a headline announcing that the "Elks Will Serve Refreshments" would bring out every good fellow in town, with the line forming on the right at Tenth and E.

* * * *

Sing Sing prisoners—and in our heart we can't help being for 'em—dig a tunnel 40 feet long and 4 feet square with a tin spoon made out of a sardine can, and swallow 600 cubic feet of earth and cement to get rid of it, and are discovered when they're 4 feet from the outside wall of the jail. Tough break!

* * * *

The Senate has a lucid interval and finally passes the amended bill for a survey of a new canal to give Uncle Sam direct access by cheap water transportation to the Marines in Nicaragua.

* * * *

Somehow those poor wretches in Sing Sing digging their way, inch by inch, toward man's most precious right, his freedom, reminds us of the time Videcq had almost cut a hole through the wall of his dungeon, when the dumb jailer came in and announced that his term of solitary confinement was at an end. "A favor was never less welcome," remarked the philosopher, in whose mind "the thirst for liberty, becoming the engrossing idea, produced plots inconceivable to the man who discusses them at his ease." No wonder so many ways have been invented to circumvent the Volstead act.

CAPTAIN OPENS DEFENSE WITH 41 WITNESSES

HELD AMONG CITY'S ABLEST POLICEMEN

Charges Against Him Are Unproved, Says Head of Department.

PROSECUTOR WOULD CURTAIL TESTIMONY

Accused Officer to Take the Stand in Own Behalf on Tuesday Morning.

The big parade passed in review before the Burlingame trial board yesterday.

Police officials, bankers, big business men and little business men, clergymen, doctors, lawyers, District officials, present and past prosecuting officers and civic leaders, crowded forward to tell the trial board and the world that Capt. Guy E. Burlingame has a reputation of the highest as a policeman and as a private citizen.

They came forward in response to their names, identified themselves as having knowledge of the suspended commander of the Second Police Precinct, running from 8 to 40 years, spoke in superlatives about him, and made way for the next.

Forty-one witnesses put their praises in the record in the two hours the session lasted, and the parade ended then only because the defense itself called a halt.

Burlingame to Take Stand.

To change the metaphor, it was the opening bombardment of the defense, preparing the way for the appearance of the police captain on the witness stand to deny the truth of the charges of improper relations made against him by Mrs. Helen F. Blalock, former Seventh street palmist and professed lady of pleasure. The veteran of 33 years policing is to take the stand when the trial is resumed at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and match his word and reputation and record against that of the woman who has accused him and backed up her accusations with letters, receipts and notes.

Burlingame is expected to occupy the stand all day Tuesday. Wednesday morning will see presentation of the last defense witness, it was predicted by counsel. Then there will remain only the closing arguments to bring the trial to a close.

The "best roughneck cop" blushed and smiled and exchanged heartfelt grips with the men who had come to defend him in his hour of need near the end of his career, which began with pounding the pavements a third of a century ago and now is threatened with an inglorious climax.

Members of the Trial Board, Maj. D. A Davison, chairman; Dr. Edgar Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital, and William P. Richards, assessor, followed the proceedings closely, leaning forward in their chairs, apparently keenly interested in the demonstration that was being made before them on Burlingame's behalf.

Woodard, gray-haired, quiet-voiced, sat in a characteristic pose with one long leg crossed over the other, a yellow tablet in his hand on which to make notes. But the quizzical, calculating expression was missing from his blue eyes yesterday which beamed with pleasure while he smiled in enjoyment of the praise that was being heaped on his friend, whom he and Leahy are defending out of friendship and with-

President Bids Aids And Press Farewell

Coolidge's Last Interview Calls Minding Business Big Achievement.

(Associated Press.)

Almost ready to go home again, after eight eventful years in high place, President Coolidge yesterday said goodby to those officials who have been nearest him during his service in Washington.

At the last Cabinet meeting of his administration he gave a final word of thanks and a parting handclasp to the department heads who have gathered twice a week with him to make the decisions which shape the course of national history; then, in a final conference with the Washington correspondents he told his questioners that he considered his one superlative achievement in Washington had been minding his own business.

To others who dropped in during his last working day but one, in the White House, Mr. Coolidge said bood-by, and expressed again and again his feeling that the most difficult part of his leaving was the breaking of personal ties—more difficult than giving up the Presidency itself.

But with all of his manifest regret there was about the President's manner something of that wistfulness for peace and quiet which never has left him in his great hours of triumph.

Threee years ago, in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press, Mr. Coolidge said:

"Mrs. Coolidge and I say to each other sometimes that we wish we could go back home."

In the same interview, speaking of his periodic visits to his birthplace in Vermont, he spoke of the little homely

Pets of White House Pass to New Owners

The President and Mrs. Coolidge have found new homes for all but one of the numerous White House pets, it was disclosed yesterday.

Calamity Jane, the big white collie, which was the best known of the White House pets, was given to the young daughter of a White House policeman about a week ago. The President's hunting pup was given to relatives of Col. E. W. Starling, of the Secret Service force. Ruby Rough, another collie, was given to Robert Robertson, master of the White House kennels. Mrs. Coolidge, however, insisted on retaining her chow. The First Lady has given a number of canaries she raised to personal friends.

Becky, the White House raccoon, was to have been given to one of the White House employes—that is, should she return, for she is now missing.

COOLIDGE MAY SIGN NEW PENSION PLAN

Indicates That He Will Weigh Demand in Congress for Dale-Lehlbach Bill.

RAISES ANNUITIES OF AIDS

Successful termination of the long fight for liberalized retirement was seen late yesterday in indications at the White House that President Coolidge would approve the Dale-Lehlbach bill, increasing retirement pay of Federal employes and otherwise bettering retirement conditions despite that the Chief Executive thinks it does not harmonize with recommendations on the legislation as expressed in his congressional message.

While the measure had not yet reached President Coolidge, it was announced he would give it careful study, recognizing the fact that Congress had his message in working out details of the legislation. It was stated further that as far as President Coolidge is concerned, congressional judgment on the legislation will have considerable weight with him.

The Dale-Lehlbach bill increases the maximum annuity from $1,000 to $1,200 a year and provides for optional retirement after 30 years' service, two years earlier than at present. At the beginning of the present session of Congress it had passed the Senate and was on the House calendar.

Opposition from President Coolidge prevented it from getting through in the last session, although it had a favorable place on the calendar and sufficient votes in the House to insure its enactment had it not been quashed by the rules committee.

Robert H. Alcorn, chairman of the Joint Conference on Retirement, predicted victory for it before the opening of the present session and labored incessantly in behalf of the movement.

Its chances for passage were greatly enhanced prior to the present session by announcement of the Interior Department that at the end of the fiscal year 1927-28 the present retirement fund totaled $83,000,000, which was considerably larger than the total at the end of the previous year and showed that the contributions of employes still far exceed drains on the fund.

Woman Bandit Is Given Man's Penalty, 16 Years

Cambridge, Mass., March 1 (U.P.).—Declaring that "if women wanted to go into the holdup business they must suffer the same consequences as men," Judge Fosdick today sentenced Mrs. Bettina Massarelli, 20, to sixteen years in the Sherborn Reformatory.

STOCKS AGAIN SOAR WITH HEAVY BUYING

Market Crosses 6,000,000-Share Mark; New Highs Set by Two Score Issues.

$4 TO $25 GAINS MADE

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—Wall street continued its celebration of the coming change in national administration today by another wild outburst of bullish enthusiasm which carried scores of issues up $4 to $25 a share. Total sales crossed the 6,000,000 share mark for the eighth time in the history of New York Stock Exchange, with the ticker half an hour or more behind the market at intervals throughout the day.

Two score issues, including such popular shares as U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem, American Can, Anaconda and Kennecott Coppers, Radio Corporation and Goodyear Tire, sold at new high prices for the year, some of them at the highest prices ever recorded. The Associated Press index of 50 leading industrials set a new high record for all time at 218, or 16.2 points above the year's low.

The rally on the New York Stock Exchange spread to the New York Curb market and the other leading security exchanges throughout the country, as well as to the "Over-the-counter market" where most of the bank and insurance shares change hands.

Capital stock of the First National Bank of New York, headed by the veteran capitalist, George F. Baker, soared $1,000 a share yesterday. Mr. Baker, who is generally believed to hold 20,000 of the bank's 100,000 shares, has therefore piled up a paper profit of $33,000,000 in the last two days.

All the leading market letters stressed the business and organizing ability of Herbert Hoover and many of them made glowing predictions of unparalleled business prosperity during his administration. This apparently helped to create bullish enthusiasm and break down the restraint imposed by the Federal Reserve Board's warning against credit inflation three weeks ago.

Blocks of 5,000 to 35,000 shares changed hands at frequent intervals in the first hour of trading. Small traders construed this as an indication that powerful financial interests were again in the market on a large scale, and a mad scramble for stocks ensued, with the floating supply of some issues so scarce that they easily ran up 2 to 5 points on turnovers of a few thousand shares. Week-end profit taking cut down some of the gains in the late trading.

Standing room was at a premium in most of the large downtown brokerage houses, nearly all of which are equipped

Hop From Mexican Capital To Washington Goal Today

Gonzalez Pacheco, With Pilot C. E. McMillin, American, Hopes to Make First Northern Flight Between Cities Without Single Stop.

Mexico City, March 1 (A.P.).—An attempt to make the first nonstop flight from Mexico City to Washington was planned tonight by Joaquin Gonzalez Pacheco and C. E. McMillin to begin at dawn tomorrow. Their Stinson-Detroiter monoplane was loaded with 500 gallons of gasoline at Valbuena Field tonight.

The plane is owned by Gonzalez Pacheco, rich young Mexican. It will be piloted by McMillin, whose home is in New York City and who has been in Mexico for five months.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh now is the only one who has flown without a stop between the two capitals. He made the southward flight in 27 hours and 10 minutes, but the two who will start tomorrow hope to keep their flying time down to 22 hours, at a maximum which would bring them to Bolling Field in the early morning of Sunday.

The late Emilio Carranza attempted the Washington flight, but was forced down by bad weather in North Carolina. He died when his plane crashed in New Jersey on an attempt to fly without stop from New York to Mexico City.

The route outlined for the present flight would carry the plane over Tampico, Brownsville and Galveston, Tex., New Orleans, Montgomery, Ala., Atlanta and Richmond to Washington.

Gonzalez Pacheco has the double purpose of stimulating aviation development in Mexico and of fostering closer relations between the two countries. He planned to carry a letter of greeting from the provisional president, Emilio Portes Gil, to Herbert Hoover, with the expectation of delivering it before the latter's inauguration on Monday.

FEDERAL WAGE REVISIONS FAIL IN CONFERENCE

Raises and Reductions Are Wrecked in Contest on Deficiency Bill.

BROOKHART WARNS HE WILL MAKE FIGHT

Woodrum, in Fiery Speech, Says Congress Has Abdicated to President.

Salary legislation for Federal employes was definitely wrecked last night when both the pay-raise and pay-reduction provisions were cut out of the second deficiency bill.

One provision was designed to give to low-paid employes the raises they were supposed to get under the Welch salary act, and the other was designed to reduce the salaries of higher-paid employes who got more than they were supposed to get.

The action of the Senate and House conferees was approved by the House shortly before 9 o'clock last night. The Senate is expected to take up the conferees report today.

Officials are Stunned.

News of the conferees' action was welcomed by the high-paid employes, but threw the more poorly-paid clerks into deep gloom. President Luther C. Steward and Secretary Gertrude McNally, of the Federation of Federal Employes, were stunned, for they had been confident that the pay-raise provision would go through.

The result of last night's action is that the present situation will be continued until the next regular session of Congress, when it is almost certain that something will be done.

Senator (Brookhart) Republican, of Iowa, who introduced the pay increase provision, was furious when he heard what the conferees had done, and threatened to kill the bill. This, however, would be a fruitless gesture, inasmuch as it would not better the present conditions.

Woodrum Raps Congress.

When the conference report was called up in the House last night, Chairman Wood, of the appropriation committee, explained what had been done to the pay provision, and then Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, launched a fiery speech in which he declared that Congress had "hauled down its flag and abdicated in favor of the Chief Executive of the Nation."

Woodrum said:

"I take the floor to comment briefly on that portion of this conference report which has eliminated all prospect of any correction of the glaring defects and inequalities that Congress about a year ago forced upon Government employes. If there was a member of the House who thought we were passing legislation that would benefit the poorer paid employes when we passed the Welch bill, then he deliberately and blindly shut his eyes and stopped up his ears, and did not carefully consider what he was voting on.

Welch Bill Cited.

"The Welch bill as originally introduced by the gentleman from California was designed to aid the lower paid employes, and it would have cost the Government around $90,000,000 a year. We all remember very well the many clerks and employes who came on Capitol Hill to evince their interest in this legislation, and many of us were enthusiastic because we were in hopes the time had come when we would be able to do something in a material way for this great army of under-paid clerks and employes of the Government.

"But what happened? The legislation was submitted not to the legislative branch of the Government and the director of the budget started in to cut off some of the necessary funds to pay for the legislation. Of course, instead of cutting it off from the higher paid employes he cut it off from the lower salaried employes, and we passed a legislative monstrosity under which, ater the comptroller general had put the finishing touches on it, we found we had increased the salaries of a group of higher paid Government of-

RAIN THREAT MENACE TO MONDAY'S PARADE; A. M. HYDE IN CABINET

Precipitation Is Promised for Tomorrow, With Warm Weather.

INAUGURAL FORECAST TO BE ISSUED TODAY

New President Will Take Oath, Have Lunch and Review Marchers.

OFFICIALS ARRIVING WITH THEIR PARTIES

Two Governors Are Here; Others Coming Today; Plans Complete.

Breaking his long silence, Charles L. Mitchell, official forecaster of the District Weather Bureau, last night issued a general forecast on weather conditions over the inaugural week-end and his prediction was slightly Democratic in the face of the fact that Herbert Hoover, Republican standard-bearer, is to be inducted into office Monday as President of the United States.

"Cloudy and warmer Sunday, followed by rain late Sunday afternoon or night," was the forecaster's prediction. How long this rain would last, Mr. Mitchell declined to state. That it would get colder some time Monday was vouchsafed, but whether the cold snap would end the period of rain before the ceremonies and the parade, the meteorologist would not state. A more explicit prediction was promised for today and hopes of thousands will remain buoyed in the air until a definite promise of rain dampens their holiday ardor.

Hoover Not in Parade.

Possibly the President-elect had advance information on probable weather conditions, for arrangements regarding the inaugural parade show that Mr. Hoover will have no part in this demonstration. Immediately after the ceremonies at the Capitol, he will drive to the White House with his personal party for lunch. After lunch he will go to the presidential reviewing stand on Pennsylvania avenue, in front of the White House to review the marchers.

In order that the thousands of spectators lining the Avenue for the parade be caused no inconvenience, it has been decided that once the parade begins to move it will not halt. During the period that Mr. Hoover and guests are at lunch and just before the parade by the marching delegations, the aerial procession will fly over the crowds, furnishing entertainment previous to the appearance of the head of the column. This arrangement may delay the actual start of the parade a few minutes, but once under way the procession will go directly to the White House without further interruption.

Hope for Good Day.

Unaware of the weather man's rather mournful predictions downtown Washington yesterday glittered and glistened under a summer-like sun with flags and bunting waving in the breeze. Fresh paint on stands along Pennsylvania avenue reflected the sunlight and converted the street into a sparkling arena, through the center of which the next President will ride to his home for at least four years—the White House.

Thousands rejoiced in the ideal conditions which prevailed with the general hope that such a day would be provided Monday when the long preparatory period will come to an end and the actual ceremony and spectacle will begin.

Visitors Pouring In.

While the city began to seethe with holiday spirit, as visitors from every nook and cranny of the United States

NAMING OF WILBUR BLOCKED IN SENATE

Judiciary Committee Adjourns for Session, Failing to Act on Judge Nomination.

OTHERS FACING CONTESTS

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Coolidge and the Senate are at odds over the last-minute list of nominations which the President has sent in for confirmation and Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy, is the outstanding victim.

The President has nominated Mr. Wilbur to be United States Circuit judge of the Ninth District of California, the home State of this member of the Coolidge Cabinet. This is an additional office, created by a division of the Eighth Circuit, and Mr. Wilbur was promised the post despite the fact that others, including Mabel Walker Willebrandt, had been mentioned in connection with it.

But the Wilbur nomination, along with others, reached the Senate yesterday prior to a meeting of the Senate judiciary committee, which passes on judgeship nominations and reports them out before the Senate acts upon them. The judiciary committee adjourned sine die yesterday for the rest of the session without reporting out the Wilbur nomination.

Meanwhile there is a determined move in the Senate to prevent the confirmation of Irvin Lenroot as judge of the Customs Court of Appeals and Henry H. Glassie to be judge of the District Supreme Court. These nominations have been favorably reported by the judiciary committee, but Senator Norris proposes to lead a determined filibuster against them. The initial plan of the filibusterers is to stave off the calling of an executive session and Senator Copeland, who spent the afternoon filibustering against the radio bill, greatly facilitated the program.

Failure of the judiciary committee to report the Wilbur nomination has apparently ended all chance of Wilbur's confirmation.

The reason for this action, it was explained, was that the nomination of Wilbur and several other nominations reached the committee too late to permit the usual inquiry conducted through subcommittees. The committee was given the choice of taking perfunctory action on these nominations or not acting at all, and chose the latter course.

Three of the names submitted by President Coolidge were, however, re-

Bandits Active Along Road Lindbergh Was to Follow

Altered Plans Prevent Flier, Fiancee and Her Mother From Passing Train Holdup Scene; Aged Aviation Enthusiast's Ranch Visited Instead.

Mexico City, March 1 (A.P.).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today took the three women of the Morrow family for a long automobile drive into the mountains west of the capital. Their objective was the ranch of Antonio Riba Cervantes, who, at the age of 75, is as enthusiastic over aviation as the colonel or his fiancee. He even has piloted a plane himself and is a great admirer of Lindbergh, as well as a friend of Ambassador Morrow. His ranch, La Gabia, is near Toluca, the capital of the State of Mexico. The 70-mile drive there lies through spectacular mountain scenery and pleasant valleys.

Leaving here this morning, the party was able to reach the ranch in time for luncheon. They spent most of the afternoon there before heading back for Mexico City. Besides Miss Anne S. Morrow, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow and her eldest daughter, Elizabeth, accompanied the colonel.

Before today's outing was planned, the Morrows and Lindbergh had considered journeying today to Cuernavaca, where they intend to spend the week-end. Had they done so, they might have encountered the bandit gang which last night held up a freight train and burned it after looting the cars. Train service between Mexico City and Cuernavaca was interrupted and probably will not be resumed until Sunday. Soldiers took up pursuit of the marauders.

The Morrows doubtless would have gone to their country house by automobile, as is their custom. The highway runs parallel with the railroad for a considerable distance and crosses it

Missourian's Selection to Agriculture Post Ends Guessing Contest.

COMMERCE SECRETARY ALONE YET UNNAMED

Tenth Man Among Advisers of President-Elect Defies Speculation.

EASTERN CANDIDATES FAVORED FOR PLACE

Westerners Fill Five Out of Ten Appointments; Four Now From East.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

As a result of a Nation-wide guessing contest the ninth member of President-elect Hoover's Cabinet was definitely added to the list last night—former Gov. Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri, for Secretary of Agriculture.

This leaves only one post, the Secretary of Commerce, yet to become known.

With Hyde's selection the Cabinet stands as follows:

Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson.
Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon.
Secretary of War, James W. Good.
Attorney General, W. D. Mitchell.
Postmaster General, Walter Brown.
Secretary of the Navy, Charles Francis Adams.
Secretary of the Interior, Ray Lyman Wilbur.
Secretary of Agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde.
Secretary of Labor, James J. Davis.

Guessing Contest Closes.

Hyde's selection became known after a part of a Nation-wide challenge had been issued to newspaper men by Hoover sources to find out the two remaining members of the Cabinet, if they could. Steadily refusing to reveal their identities, it was nevertheless promised that if any correct guesses were made they would be confirmed.

With this understanding, a representative of Mr. Hoover stood in the center of a group for 30 minutes or more, while every name under the sun was flung at him. None of them proved correct and the newspaper men finally gave it up.

Subsequently, the Kansas City Star announced the appointment of Hyde and the announcement was given confirmation here. The tenth name was yet to be developed anywhere in the country.

Hyde's Appointment Cleared.

The managing editor of the Star, Roy A. Roberts, close friend of Mr. Hoover, was consulted sometime ago about Hyde, it was learned.

Hyde's appointment is a distinct recognition by Mr. Hoover of the forces that opposed his nomination. As a member of the Missouri delegation, Hyde espoused the cause of former Gov. Lowden of Illinois.

It also gives Missouri another place in the Cabinet for that vacated by Secretary of War Dwight W. Davis. Dr. E. B. Clements, Republican national committeeman of Missouri, at first urged the retention of Mr. Davis, but when he learned that the War Secretary was unavailable he urged that some one from Missouri be named. Senator-elect Paterson conferred with Mr. Hoover about the appointment last night.

Although Mr. Hoover is believed to have had Hyde under consideration for probably two weeks, he did not definitely decide to name him until a few days ago.

Long Active in Missouri.

Active in Missouri politics and as governor of the State, Hyde has long been identified with the Mississippi Valley agricultural movement. His presentation of Kansas City's claim for the Republican convention before the national committee here in Washington last year had much to do with that city's ultimate selection.

In 1926 he publicly indorsed the then Senator George Williams vote for the McNary-Haugen bill, and in addition to his present law office in Kansas City and an automobile agency in his home town of Trenton, Mo., he owns several farms in the State.

He is an outstanding dry, having taken the dry issue in what was considered a wet State in his gubernatorial campaign. He is a graduate of Michigan University, a Methodist, a Shriner and a trustee of Missouri Wesleyan University. In 1912 he followed Roosevelt into the Bull Moose movement, but two years later returned to the regular fold.

With his retirement from the gubernatorial office in 1925 Hyde generally considered himself out of the political picture, and it is understood that it was only after persuasion on Mr. Hoover's part that he decided to accept the Cabinet portfolio. He did get considerable consideration for the vice presidential nomination in 1924. Even now, after being back in the practice of law for more than three years, he is only 51 years old.

In the absence of any authoritative information on the subject the belief persisted that the Secretary of Commerce would come from the East. As the count stands at present, five are from the West, four from the Middle West, and one from the Far West—California—and the remaining four are from the East.

Geography Divides Cabinet.

The Agriculture, Interior, Postoffice, Justice and War Departments are to be administered by men hailing from west of the Mississippi River. Treasury, State, Labor and Navy have Easterners at their head.

It has been authoritatively stated that the South is not to be represented, but this is not with the intention of ignoring that section, but born of the school of thought that States as a whole are not especially flattered by having one of their sons in the Cabinet.

There were reports last night that Brown might be shifted to the Commerce Department at the last moment and John H. Bartlett, now Assistant Postmaster General, made Postmaster General. These reports, however, met with authoritative denial.

Ambassador Judah Calls.

With no preinaugural worries left, Mr. Hoover had a real relaxation yesterday in an automobile ride with Mrs. Hoover over the nearby countryside. His immediate family, including his son Allan, and his son, Herbert, jr., with his wife, will be under the S street roof tonight. Other close friends, in addition to those already here, and relatives will also have arrived.

Callers on Mr. Hoover during the day included Col. Noble Judah, Ambassador to Cuba. Following his call he left for his post in Havana. It is understood, though, that he expects to retire shortly after the new administration comes in.

Inaugural Liquor Is Seized in Raid

100 Quarts of Rum Found After Police Receive Anonymous Tip.

An anonymous telephone call received early last night at the First Precinct Station led to the confiscation of more than 100 quarts of rye, gin and alcohol, believed to have been destined for inaugural festivities, from the second floor hallway of 1202 E street northwest.

The unknown informer called for Detective R. J. Cox, of Sergt. Letterman's vice squad, and told the officer that the alleged liquor had just been delivered at the E street address, and that the police should hurry to the scene.

Accompanied by Precinct Detectives A. D. Mansfield and J. R. Le Foe, Cox ran the block and a half distance from the station, and found the contraband unguarded in the second-floor hallway. The owner of the liquor, which was taken to the First Precinct Station, could not be found.

Summer Capitol In Virginia Voted

Mount Weather Approved by Conferees; President to Control Funds.

The proposal to establish a summer White House at Mount Weather, Va., was approved by the Senate and House conferees on the second deficiency bill last night.

The item was amended, however, so as to provide that the $48,000 appropriation for the proposed summer retreat shall be spent on improvements only if the President so orders.

The House approved the report of the conferees last night, and the Senate will act today. The item was in the bill in the beginning, but went out on a point of order by Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York. The Senate put it back in on the motion of Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia.

A. M. HYDE CHOSEN AGRICULTURE HEAD

Former Governor of Missouri Supported Lowden and His Relief Views.

IS OWNER OF 3 FARMS

Kansas City, March 1 (A.P.).—The Kansas City Star will say in a copyrighted story in its morning edition tomorrow that Arthur M. Hyde, former governor of Missouri, will be Secretary of Agriculture in the Hoover Cabinet.

Mr. Hyde has accepted the appointment tendered him by the President-elect, and is en route to Washington to attend the inaugural ceremonies, the newspaper will say.

In selecting the Missourian for the Agriculture post, Mr. Hoover was understood to have been greatly impressed by his record as an administrator, both while governor of his native State and as a business man.

The appointment gives recognition to that element of the Republican party which supported former Gov. Lowden, of Illinois, and his views on the farm question in the preconvention period. Mr. Hyde, however, did not join in advocacy of the equalization fee, although he did give his aid to the movement to nominate Lowden at the Kansas City convention.

Known as a successful lawyer and business man, the appointee is not unacquainted with farm problems at first hand. He owns and operates three farms in Grundy county, Mo. This factor was understood to have had much influence in the selection of the Missourian.

As Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Hyde will play a large part in carrying out the farm relief program to be worked out under the Hoover administration. He was chosen, it is understood, with the view that the tasks confronting the new Secretary will be largely of an administrative and executive nature.

The Star says the appointment was unsolicited and was as much a surprise to Mr. Hyde as to the rest of the State.

'It is known that at first Mr. Hyde flatly refused to accept," continued the newspaper, "believing others better qualified for the position. It was only at Mr. Hoover's insistence that he consented to become a member of the new President's official family."

Mr. Hyde, who served as governor from 1920 to 1924, was invited by Mr. Hoover to visit him early in February when the President-elect was in Florida. At the first conference, the newspaper says, Mr. Hyde was "more than ever perplexed" when the subject of the appointment to the Cabinet was broached, and declined to accept on the ground that there were others more qualified to head the Department of Agriculture. Other conferences followed at which it is understood Mr. Hoover outlined that he wanted an administrator with the abilities of Mr. Hyde for the Agriculture position, and Mr. Hyde accepted.

Since retiring from the governorship Mr. Hyde has passed most of his time in Kansas City directing the affairs of the Sentinel Life Insurance Co., of which he is president. He refused to become a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination last year and also declined to allow his name to be put forward for the Vice Presidency. He is 51 years old and was born at the village of Princeton, Mo., the son of Judge Ira B. Hyde, formerly a Representative in Congress from the Second Missouri district.

Ran First as Progressive.

Admitted to the bar at Princeton in 1900, he began the practice of law with his father. He married Miss Hortense Cullers, daughter of Charles Cullers, wealthy land owner near Trenton, Mo., in 1904. They have one daughter Caroline, now 16.

His first venture into politics was in 1912, when the Progressive party nominated him for the State attorney generalship. He was defeated.

After a whirlwind campaign in 1920, he received the Republican gubernatorial nomination and was elected by a large plurality in a State that had only one Republican governor since the Civil War.

Announcement of the Missourian's appointment settled the guessing contest as to the identity of one of the two mystery men chosen by Mr. Hoover to complete his Cabinet.

A "surprise" was promised the country in the filling of the posts of Secretary of Agriculture and Secretary of Commerce when it became known that President-elect Hoover had rounded out his official family. No inkling had been given prior to tonight that Mr. Hyde was under consideration.

The disposition of one other Cabinet post remains to be announced—that of Secretary of Commerce.

"Handy Andy" will mend it for you. Where will you find him? See the advertisements under the heading of "Personals" in the classified section of today's Post.

Nicaraguan Canal Measure Is Passed

Senate Agrees to Changes in House; Resolution Is Up to President.

(Associated Press.)

Approval was given last night by the Senate to House amendments to the resolution authorizing a survey for a Nicaraguan canal and the resolution now goes to the President. The House had acted upon the measure earlier in the day.

An appropriation of 150,000 for making the survey and for studying plans to enlarge the Panama Canal already has been included in the pending second deficiency appropriation bill.

Senator Edge (Republican), New Jersey, author of the resolution, took advantage of the Senate rules last night to win immediate consideration of the changes made by the House. Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, voiced opposition again to the resolution, but rather than face a filibuster against the radio bill, he yielded to a vote on the Nicaraguan proposition.

Random Inaugural Notes; Official Craft Given Air

Air space over the District of Columbia has been declared prohibited area through an executive order issued by President Coolidge. The order went into effect last night and will continue until midnight Wednesday. Only aircraft with special permits from the Secretary of Commerce may operate over the District during this period

Maj. Charles Demonet, president of the Reserve Officers Association, has places for additional men in his inaugural parade detachment. Officers desiring to participate may reach him at 1520 Connecticut avenue, or by calling Decatur 2100.

An added feature of the 1929 inauguration will be the presentation of gold medals bearing likenesses of Herbert Hoover to the new President and Vice President after the ceremony Monday. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the general inaugural committee, will make the presentation.

The Signal Corps will handle the aerial broadcasting of the inaugural. A three-motored Fokker will broadcast, the plane's broadcast to be picked up and relayed over a nation-wide hookup.

Four Coast Guard cutters are on exhibition at the navy yard today. They are the Mojave, Manning, Seneca and Apache. Members of their crews will form the Coast Guard division of the parade Monday.

"Be prepared" is the slogan of A. B. Bates, fifer of the Topeka, Kans., Drum Corps. He has been marching four miles daily to strengthen himself for the long grind from the Capitol to the White House.

Wounded veterans from the various service hospitals of the District will see the parade Monday as guests of the District Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The party from the Jefferson Davis Soldiers Home, in Mississippi, will arrive tomorrow and will be guests of Mrs. George D. Horning, president of the District of Columbia Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy. Twenty Confederate veterans will visit the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, in Arlington Cemetery, tomorrow afternoon, laying a wreath there. Tuesday they will visit Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington.

A group of historical pictures, including one of the first presidential mansion, at Cherry and Pearl streets, New York City, in 1789, is on display at the central building of the Washington Public Library. Other interesting photos deal with past inaugurations.

Maj. Burdette S. Wright, of the inaugural committee, has announced that there will be no "free rides" for the general public Tuesday, as previously announced. Only visitors having personal contact with pilots of commercial flying officials will be carried free.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and members of the Cadet Corps of Birmingham (Ala.) High School will form a group of 100 due to arrive here tomorrow. Maj. Heston Cooper and Miss Frances Youngblood will be in charge of the delegation. The Alabamans will place a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier tomorrow afternoon.

Attention of the visiting public is being called to Washington's "voteless" condition by members of the citizens joint committee for national representation. The committee has opened headquarters in the National Press Club building and huge window signs call attention to the purpose of the organization.

Should a shortage of room space develop, arrangements have been made to use precinct police stations to house visiting military units. Enough space to handle beds and cots furnished the Army men has been cleared if an emergency demands such use of the police stations.

In addition to the inaugural charity ball at the Washington Auditorium Monday night, the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Institute of Mining Engineers will hold a reception and ball in the Interior Department building. Mrs. Herbert Hoover is honorary president of the organization.

With the Washington Auditorium transformed into the appearance of a colorful palace, the arrival of Army, Navy, Marine and diplomatic delegations for the inaugural charity ball Monday night is expected to present one of the most brilliant social events in Capital history.

Dispatches from the Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J., yesterday told of the departure of the 200-foot blimps J-3 and J-4 for Langley Field, Va., where they were to join the Army craft TC-5 and TC-10 for participation in the air parade over the inaugural line of march.

Among the added events tomorrow for the city's guests will be a concert at 4 o'clock in the afternoon by the A Cappella Chorus of 60 voices in the First Congressional Church, Tenth and G streets.

Capt. Albert W. Stevens, noted Army aerial photographer, who will record events from a plane, did not arrive yesterday as expected. He was held in Dayton, Ohio, by inclement weather, but is expected at Bolling Field today.

Arriving Peddlers, Agog At Inaugural, Get Jolt

Thirty-five professional peddlers, the majority from New York, descended upon the Capital yesterday, intent on cleaning up tidy sums by vending various wares to inaugural crowds.

Their spirits high and their purses low, following expenditure of train fare to Washington, they appeared in a body at police headquarters to obtain their permits. And then arrived "the minute that seems a year."

For they came unprepared for the shock which greeted them in the form of the $25 license fee which police regulations require this year. Amid much moaning and gnashing of teeth the peddlers, at least most of them, retreated in disorder. A few paid the fee and prepared to have their photographs made to be placed on licenses. Others made a bee line for the station and a return ticket to New York before their cash ran out. A few were caught without railroad fare home, having counted on the harvest here to relieve their financial distress.

L. B. Mayer, Film Producer, to Talk

National Press Club Will Hear Him Give Close-Up on Stars Today.

Louis B. Mayer, of Los Angeles, head of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer moving picture organization, who is in Washington for the inauguration, will be the guest of honor and speaker at a luncheon this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the National Press Club.

Mr. Mayer, who will be introduced by Strickland Gillilan, local humorist and poet, will speak on "What Is Going on in Movieland?" It is expected that his treatment of the subject will be comprehensive in scope, taking in behind-the-scene views of Hollywood and the stars of the silver screen.

Mr. Mayer and his family arrived here yesterday. He was a delegate to the Kansas City convention and has been an ardent supporter of Hoover for several years.

HOOVER ALTERS PROGRAM

began to pour through the portals of the great Union Station, as hotel managers scurried feverishly about in an effort to provide for late arrivals and as relatives and friends guided other relatives and friends to points of historic interest in the Capital, the main figures in Monday's ceremony were quietly going about the business which will occupy them until they step forth into the public eye at noon on that day.

Herbert Hoover, who will become the thirty-first President, rested in his home on S street, far from the ever-increasing din and clamor of traffic on downtown streets. His Cabinet selected, his inaugural address in the hands of the printers, the President-elect was alone with his thoughts. Future appointments, tasks to be faced and a thousand and one details no doubt occupy his attention, but as far as the public is concerned he is out of the picture until Monday.

Coolidge Has Busy Day.

Calvin Coolidge, who will retire from office as Mr. Hoover steps into the Chief Executive's position, remained in the White House. He said good-by to the members of his Cabinet and devoted attention to last-minute legislation passed by Congress and which awaits his signature or veto. His thoughts are turning to the home in Northampton to which he will speed immediately following the ceremony which relieves him of his duties as President.

In the chambers of the United States Senate, Charles G. Dawes, Vice President, sat in the President's chair, while on the floor, maintaining his place as Republican leader to the finish of the term, was Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, Vice President-elect. Both chose this routine method of preparing for the official functions which will open a new era of public life for one and send the other to his home in Evanston, Ill., out of the news spotlight, momentarily, at least.

A final checking up of all inaugural plans will be made today by the general committee in charge of the event with a view to completing all details and permitting a Sabbath of rest for all interested parties.

For those unable to visit the City of Washington during the inaugural period will remain the solace of the radio. Every event of importance will be broadcast with the voices of notables reaching the homes and offices of millions.

Philip Carlin, veteran of the "mike," arrived yesterday and today was scheduled to go through a rehearsal of the entire broadcasting program, together with Graham McNamee, Milton Cross and John B. Daniel, who will form the quartet of announcers for the nation-wide hookup.

The Radio Commission yesterday issued orders to all stations not broadcasting the inauguration ceremonies to arrange their programs in such a way as to cause the least interference with the reception of announcements from the Capital Monday, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 4 p. m.

Many Officials Coming.

Officialdom from all sections of the country is represented in the Capital today, with added delegations due to arrive almost hourly between now and Monday morning. Two governors and their staffs have reached Washington, with more than a score of others expected to arrive in time for participation in the parade.

Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama arrived yesterday morning and is quartered at the Arlington Hotel with his staff of 30. Gov. Louis Emmerson of Illinois and a party of 90 arrived yesterday afternoon, and, accompanied by a police escort, went immediately to their headquarters at the Mayflower.

Gov. Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire, with a staff of twenty; Gov. John E. Weeks of Vermont, with a staff of twelve, and the staff of Gov John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, including Maj. John Coolidge, son of the President, will be quartered at the Arlington Hotel by tomorrow night.

At the Willard Hotel reservations have been made for Gov. Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio and his staff of twenty; Gov. C. Douglas Buck of Delaware, Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania, Gov. Morgan F. Larson of New Jersey, Gov. Flem D. Sampson of Kentucky, Gov. John Hammill of Iowa, Gov. Frank C. Emerson of Wyoming, Gov. Harry G. Leslie of Indiana and Gov C. Max Gardner of North Carolina.

The Mayflower will be headquarters for Gov. Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts, Gov. Fred W. Green of Michigan, Gov. John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, Gov. Theodore Christianson of Minnesota, as well as Gov. Emmerson of Illinois.

Gov. Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin and Gov. William T. Gardiner of Maine have reservations at the Carlton, while Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi will have headquarters at the Chastleton.

Australian Boys Arrive.

Arrival of a group of 150 Australian boys with a band marked the inaugural preparations yesterday. The boys marched to the Navy Yard from the station. This morning at 11 o'clock they will go to Arlington Cemetery to place a wreath of red, white and blue carnations on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The wreath will contain a silk Australian flag. The service will be an Australian ceremony, never before performed at the tomb. At noon the boys will parade to the White House and at 2 o'clock this afternoon they are to be received in the Senate by Vice President Dawes.

Officials at Bolling Field last night were optimistic over prospects of carrying out the aerial part of the inaugural program. Yesterday's bright sunshine helped to dry up the field while a squad of Army men worked on the landing field, filling a number of the worst mud holes. If there is no heavy rain it is believed the program arranged may be carried out intact.

Amended Radio Bill Is Passed by Senate

Compromise, Extending the Life of Board to December 31, Ends Filibuster.

(Associated Press.)

The House bill extending the life of the Radio Commission as an administrative body was passed last night by the Senate, with a modification that the commission be continued only until December 31 of this year, instead of for a full year.

Acceptance of the December 31 compromise ended another filibuster scare which had provoked the filing earlier in the night of a petition to invoke the cloture rule shutting off debate.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, who spoke for more than six hours against the bill, proposed the compromise. Senator Watson (Republican), Indiana, the sponsor of the measure, accepted the amendment.

Because of the change the bill must go to conference.

Lieut. Clausing, Burned In Shanghai Fire, Dies

Shanghai, March 1 (A.P.).—Lieut. John Clausing, of the Fourth Regiment, United States Marine Corps, died today from septic poisoning which followed severe burns.

The lieutenant was burned in an attempt to rescue his wife during a fire at their boarding house in the French concession on February 24. Mrs. Clausing was burned to death.

The Clausings were married in Washington in 1920. The lieutenant's home was in Rawlins, Wyo.

Washington Exhibit Ushers in Inaugural Officially, the inaugural period in Washington is opened. "Washington—Past, Present and Future," an exhibit in the Washington Building Fifteenth and New York avenue, is ready for inspection by the public.

Photos of the Capital's chief buildings, of the Monument, of proposed additions to the governmental layout, maps of various portions of the city, reproductions of items to be found in the Smithsonian Institution and cards tending to impress the visitors with Washington's advantages, make up the display.

BRITAIN TOLD NAVAL PACT IS PARAMOUNT

Rothermere Sees "Danger" in U. S. Vessel Program; Assails Chamberlain.

MONEY SHIP-RACE FACTOR

London (Saturday), March 2 (A.P.).—The Daily Mail today prints a message from Lord Rothermere, its chief proprietor, who now is in New York, urging the British government to propose a new naval conference and stressing the "serious danger" of allowing development of the present strained Anglo-American relations.

His message said in part: "With much reluctance I turn aside from urgent business affairs here to warn my fellow countrymen at home of the really serious danger of allowing the present increasing estrangement of Anglo-American relations to develop.

Chamberlain Is Assailed.

"In some inexplicable way, the British foreign office, under its present chief, has failed to grasp the paramount importance of what, after all, must be the basis of our foreign policy—the maintenance of a most cordial understanding between ourselves and the United States.

"In its relations with America, blunder has succeeded blunder, there was first the failure of the Geneva naval conference. * * * Sir Austen Chamberlain's only reply to the grave criticisms subsequently leveled against his department for the unfortunate outcome was that there had been a "want of preparation" on the part of the British government for this all-important discussion.

"Instead of at once endeavoring to arrange a further conference, the British foreign office entered into what was, in effect, a secret pact with France, covering almost the identical ground that was set down for negotiations with America at Geneva."

"Distrust Established."

"Was anything more likely to establish an atmosphere of distrust and mistrust between the governments of London and Washington?

"Right up to the present time, the bungling of the British government has continued. The most recent example of it was the repudiation by Sir Austen Chamberlain of the happy announcement made in a speech by the British Ambassador in Washington that the British government favored holding of anover naval conference.

"It is the turn of Great Britain to propose a new conference. Such a step is dictated by the most elementary common sense, for real competition in naval strength between our country and America is economically impossible. The United States now has probably more than half the wealth of the world, and this is increasing with unbelievable rapidity."

American Defends President of Cuba

Story of Feeding Machado's Foes to Sharks Fantastic, Says Hedges.

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—Dayton Hedges, director of the American Chamber of Commerce in Cuba and a close friend of President Machado, tonight denied charges made yesterday by Octavio Seigle, Cuban exile, that the Machado regime had fed some of its political foes to sharks.

"Nonsense and bunk, inconceivable and fantastic" was his characterization of the accusations. He denied that there was any disturbance in Cuba and said that statements to the contrary were "a publicity stunt on the part of certain interests to cause American intervention, which is wholly unnecessary."

"The Cuban people have the utmost confidence in Machado, who deals with them in all fairness and honesty," Hedges said. "Speaking in behalf of Americans in Cuba, who have the same rights as Cuban citizens, I can say we have complete confidence in President Machado.

Princess Reports $20,000 Gem Loss

Member of Portuguese Royal Family Seeks Aid of New York Police.

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—The New York police revealed today that the Princess de Braganza of Portugal lost jewels valued at $20,000 from a jewel case while en route from Florida to this city in a train that arrived here on the evening of February 11.

Police of all cities along the route of the train, as well as jewelers and pawnbrokers, have received descriptions of the missing jewels.

The princess, now at a New York hotel, said the missing jewelry comprised a diamond bracelet, containing three large rose diamonds on 2½-inch platinum bars, and a rectangular dinner ring with a rose diamond flanked by four large diamonds, a sapphire and a ruby, and surrounded by a cluster of small diamonds.

ported out by the committee at yesterday's last session. They are Allen Cox, to be United States judge of the Northern District of Mississippi, Charles Edgar Woodward, to be United States judge of the Northern District of Illinois, and George R. It was explained that the committee had anticipated these nominations and that subcommittees had therefore been in a position to make the usual inquiries and investigations. Yesterday's meeting of the full committee was called to act upon these three nominations.

In addition to the Wilbur nomination, the list sent in by the President yesterday included Lloyd P. Stryker and Francis G. Saffey, to be United States judges for the Southern District of New York; Archibald K. Gardner, of South Dakota, to be United States judge of the Eighth Circuit; George T. McDermott, of Kansas, to be United States judge of the Tenth Circuit; Orie L. Phillips, of New Mexico, to be United States judge of the Tenth Circuit, and A. Lee Wyman, of South Dakota, to be United States judge of the District of South Dakota.

CIVIC LEADERS TAKE STAND FOR CAPTAIN

HESSE DEFENDS OFFICER

out fee. Leahy, too, was in a happier mood.

In some indefinable manner Burlingame looked younger, more alive, and better groomed than at any other time since his trial for conduct unbecoming an officer and prejudicial to the good name and order of the Police Department began, although he wore the same clothes and always has been freshly shaved, as yesterday.

"I have known Capt. Burlingame for more than 30 years and he is one of the most efficient police officers we ever have had in the Police Department," Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, told the trial board under oath.

"His character never has been questioned before," Maj. Hesse said, and added, in answer to questions from Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Fowler, that Burlingame's record stood unblemished only because it had been able to withstand the most searching investigation which could be made.

Holds Charges Unproved.

"We have used every agency of the United States Government to investigate complaints and charges and rumors against him and none of these has been proved against him," Hesse declared.

When Hesse left the witness stand he passed by his accused captain to go to his seat and get his overcoat and hat. As Hesse passed Burlingame looked at him, smiled slightly and nodded his head in thanks and approval. Hesse left immediately in the company of Inspector Henry G. Pratt, assistant superintendent of police and chief of the detective bureau, who had preceded the police chief on the stand.

Pratt was emphatic in expressing his praise of Capt. Burlingame. Of course, complaints had been received against him, Pratt said in a manner which seemed to convey, more forcefully than words, that any policeman who had been as energetic as Burlingame would be bound to have enemies.

Efficient Man, Pratt Declares.

"We have received several complaints of a very serious character against Capt. Burlingame, but after a serious and thorough investigation and after, as Maj. Hesse can tell you, these complaints were exhaustively investigated by two agencies of the United States Government, these complaints were found unfounded," Pratt declared. Capt. Burlingame is one of the most efficient officers in the department."

Pratt told how Burlingame often slept on tables in the detctive bureau so that he would be able to get an earlier start in his work against criminals. Pratt, too, received a look of pleased gratitude from Burlingame when he left the witness stand, as well as a murmured word of thanks.

Inspector William S. Shelby, assistant superintendent of police in charge of personnel, said that Burlingame was considered by himself and "other officers at headquarters" as the "most efficient" official in the Police Department, "particularly in regard to the enforcement of laws against vice, gambling and liquor."

Other Officers Pay Tribute.

"His reputation for integrity and honesty is most excellent," Shelby said, and he, too, was emphatic in his declaration. "Until he is convicted by conclusive proof he will stand high in my estimation."

Thirteen other police officers told the trial board about the accused captain. "Excellent," "splendid," "couldn't be better," "most energetic," most efficient," "the best," "exceptionally good," —these were the words and phrases with which they replied laconically when they were asked "What is Capt. Burlingame's reputation?"

They gave their answers quickly, seeming to anticipate the questions, and there was something which hinted of many experiences in witness chairs about their manner. Under brief questioning by Fowler many of the captains and inspectors said they based their statements on Burlingame's reputation as a policeman, that they did not know him socially and had not lived in the same neighborhood with him.

It remained for Precinct Detective Michael Dowd, who worked under Burlingame when the captain was in command of the vice and rum squad with headquarters at the Sixth Precinct Station, to depart from the spare speech of the captains.

Tells of Men's Loyalty.

"I haven't got words to express my admiration for Capt. Burlingame as an officer and as a man," Dowd cried in a voice colored with an Irish brogue. "No, sir," he added, "he never said, 'go ahead,' he said, 'come on.'

"His men loved him," Dowd said and he emphasized and held on to the word love as though he did not want its sound to die out of the trial room.

Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, chief of the homicide squad of the detective bureau, which recently solved the baffling Bittner murder, brought that case into the testimony under questioning by William E. Leahy, who, with Henry F. Woodard, is defending Burlingame.

It is a part of the defense story that Burlingame used his acquaintance and association with Mrs. Bialock to get information about vice and crime in his precinct. Mrs. Bialock, under cross-examination by Leahy earlier in the trial, denied that she had given Burlingame information on the Bittner case.

Protects Tips, Kelly Says.

Kelly said that when he began to work on the case Burlingame took him to a house on Seventh street, near Mrs. Bialock's residence, saying that he had received information that a colored man had been seen to run into the house, hatless, shortly after the shooting the night before. Later information, Kelly said, led the police hunt elsewhere.

Burlingame did not mention Mrs. Bialock's name to him as the source of his tip, Kelly said in answer to Fowler, but also told Leahy that the sources of tips were guarded with the utmost secrecy by detectives, and never confided to a brother officer.

"I wouldn't tell my brother where I got a tip," Kelly said.

Captains Back Associate.

Capt. Fred Cornwell, commander of the Fourth Precinct, said he had worked with Burlingame for 20 years and had known him for 32 years and that "I never saw a man with more ambition, or a more fearless man than Capt. Burlingame. He is the most fearless man I ever have known. I have never seen a man who could or would stand as much duty as Burlingame."

There were other police officers who praised the accused officer, including Inspector Louis J. Stoll, Inspector William E. Harrison, Capt. T. R. Bean, of the First Precinct; Capt. Charles H. Bremmerman, of the Fourteenth; Capt. Ira Sheetz, of the Tenth; Capt. Martin Reilly, of the Sixth; Capt. William E. Sanford, of the Fifth; Capt. C. P. M. Lord, of the Thirteenth; Capt. Maurice Collins, of the Seventh, and Capt. William G. Stott, of the Third Precinct.

When they had concluded there was no doubt about what they thought of Burlingame as a policeman. They tersely pictured him as tireless, fearless, shrewd, capable, indefatigable and honest.

But the story of the testimony of the policemen is only a part of the story of the crowded two hours the trial lasted yesterday.

Bride Seeks to Halt Parade.

Once William W. Bride, corporation counsel, directing the prosecution, objected to the calling of what then seemed likely to prove an unending stream of character witnesses. That was when evelen persons had praised Burlingame.

There was no reason to continue the presentation, Bride declared, saying that it took up time and added to the expense of the proceedings, already heavy.

"There is no reason for continuing this parade," Bride protested.

"We admit, and do so with perfect willingness, everything these witnesses say about the efficiency and the reputation of Capt. Burlingame. You could bring 1,000 or 20,000 of these witnesses here. This is just a parade and like an inaugural parade should be limited."

The objection brought from Leahy his first real speech of the trial. The defense counsel jumped to his feet.

Leahy Defends Procedure.

"This so-called parade was arranged to offset the subtle attack that has been made on Capt. Burlingame's character," Leahy told the trial board. "I regard the testimony of these citizens as of the utmost importance in presenting to this trial board a true picture of this case.

"If it is possible to drive a dagger into the back of a man it has been done in this case by one woman. Capt. Burlingame could not be the character of man that this woman has painted him when she was on the witness stand and also be the type of man these character witnesses have described him to be."

Bride withdrew his objection, saying that the efficiency of Burlingame was not in question, that he would admit that Burlingame had a good reputation in the community, but that the only question at issue in the trial was whether he wrote the letters he is accused of writing and had the association of Mrs. Bialock he is said to have had.

There was no effort on the part of Bride or Fowler to check or confine the statement of witnesses. Now and then Fowler would question a witness who had said he never had heard anything against Burlingame's reputation.

Baptist Minister on Stand.

"Have you ever had any discussion about his character or reputation with any one outside the Police Department?" and when he was told no, let the witness go. Witness after witness was let go with "no questions."

The prosecution seemed well content to permit Burlingame to show that he was not an outcast, damned in the eyes of the entire community, and seemed confident that they have made out their case in support of the charges.

The Rev. William S. Abernethy, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, and an officer and a moving spirit in the Citizens Service Organization, which was formed to add to the police an army of private citizens who would spy out liquor law violations, was one of the early witnesses called to praise Burlingame.

The appearance of Dr. Abernethy caused a momentary surprise, inasmuch as the entire police force of the District has been most bitterly assailed by speakers before his association, which frequently has heard speakers denounce "graft" and "protection," which, it was charged, exists in the National Capital.

Business Men Testify.

Others who spoke for Capt. Burlingame included Col. Robert N. Harper, president of the District National Bank; Isaac Gans, of Saks & Co., former president of the Chamber of Commerce and civic leader; Clarence F. Norment, chairman of the board of directors of the National Bank of Washington; Charles W. Worden, first vice president of the Continental Trust Co.; former District Commissioner J. Thilman Hendrick, Odell S. Smith, secretary-treasurer of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co. and chairman of the police and public order committee of the Board of Trade; William Callahan, of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co.; Herbert L. Davis, lawyer and former auditor of the District Supreme Court; John N. Harding, superintendent of Woodward & Lothrop store; Howard S. Fiske, Joseph W. Brown, restaurant proprietor; Michael O'Hanlon, automobile dealer; John H. R. Wright, undertaker and director in the Seventh Street Bank; Charles W. Arth, former Assistant United States District Attorney; Dr. Charles S. White, physician; United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, Assistant United States District Attorney David A. Hart, Maj. W. L. Peak, superintendent of the District Jail; Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor; Maj. James R. Lusby, District disbursing officer; Joseph E. Kelly, attorney; Frank Kelly, attorney and former Assistant District Attorney; Charles S. Hawley and Percy H. Marshall, former assistant corporation counsel and a member of the extraordinary Police Trial Board which tried and convicted Capt. Schneider several years ago.

Joseph Kelly said he knew of Burlingame's efficiency because "I have lost several cases to him;" Hart said that no other member of the police force prepares their cases so well as Burlingame, and other former prosecutors who testified said the same thing.

Burlingame is to be the first witness called when the trial is resumed at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Leahy and Woodard said when adjournment was taken yesterday shortly after midday.

AL CAPONE TO DEFY KILLINGS SUMMONS

Former Gang Leader Denies Complicity in Massacre of Seven Gunmen.

TWO SUSPECTS CHARGED

Miami Beach, Fla., March 1 (A.P.).—Al Capone, spending the winter at his island estate here, has been served with a subpoena to appear in Chicago courts in connection with recent alleged gang war killings, but he does not intend to appear in Chicago in answer to the summons, he said today. The subpoena was served by a deputy United States marshal from Jacksonville, he said.

Declaring he had "retired" Capone said he was not implicated in any of the killings, and that he had no interest in the case in any way.

"I wasn't mixed up in it and neither were any of my men," he declared. "I am not interested in the affair."

The former Chicago gang leader declared that he is tired of having his name drawn into Chicago gangsters' activities.

Two Suspects Booked.

Chicago, March 1 (A.P.).—Jack McGurn and Rocco Fanelli were booked on seven charges of murder late today in connection with the St. Valentine's Day gang massacre.

The two men were booked precisely at 5 o'clock, the deadline fixed by a criminal court judge, who promised the men's attorney he would issue a writ of habeas corpus at that time if they were not formally charged.

Throughout the day McGurn and Fanelli had been questioned by detectives seeking to definitely link them with the massacre. McGurn, it was said, clung to his original alibi story that he and his blonde sweetheart, Louise (Lulu Lou) Rolfe, were in a room at the Stevens Hotel at the time the shooting took place.

Woman Scores Theory.

The Rolfe woman also spent some time with the inquisitors, but continued to scoff at the theory that McGurn was in any way implicated.

Sam "Gin Gin" Giamcanpa, wanted for bond forfeiture and known to police, they said, as a member of the notorious "42" gang, and Salvatore Strocchia, were arrested early today as suspects.

Another development was discovery that the last known owner of the automobile, found nearly demolished in a West Side suburb two nights ago by the premature explosion of a dynamite bomb, had given a fictitious address when he purchased it from a car agency. He gave his name as "Patrick Gleason," but the address was found to be a vacant lot.

Police continued to maintain that both McGurn and Fanelli had been identified in connection with the massacre, but refused to specify the connection.

2.75 Beer Referendum Passes in Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., March 1 (A.P.).—The assembly today concurred in the Duncan resolution providing for a State referendum in April on the question of repeal of the State dry law and legalization of 2.75 per cent beer. The measure now goes to the governor.

The assembly concurred in the favorable action of the State senate by a vote of 43-27, after three days of debate and parliamentary maneuvering. As a result, the people will express an opinion as to whether the State prohibition enforcement act should be repealed or the law amended so that 2.75 per cent beer will be legally interpreted as non-intoxicating.

President's Aids Take Posts in Private Life

Edward T. Clark, personal secretary to the President, revealed yesterday that he has completed arrangements for an affiliation with the chain drug-store organization conducted by Louis K. Liggett, Republican national committeeman from Massachusetts. He expects to remain in Washington.

Everett Sanders, official secretary of the President, is to resume the practice of law. He will enter the law firm of James W. Good, who is scheduled for the War portfolio in the Hoover Cabinet. The firm has offices in Chicago and Washington, but it was not learned yesterday which will be his residence.

things that any man must forego when he sits in a place of high responsibility.

"I like to dispense with the kind of service that it is necessary for me to have at the White House, and wait on myself. If I find a strap is broken, I like to get out the tools that are used by shoemakers and harness makers, make a waxed end, and repair it. I like to go out and repair the fence when it is breaking down, and mend the latch on the kitchen door."

Future Kept Secret.

Not even to some of his closest friends has the retiring President yet disclosed what sort of life he will lead in Northampton, but it was no surprise to those who knew him when he announced he had renewed the lease on the little half house where he and Mrs. Coolidge lived in the old, quieter days, without servants or osteentation, just plain neighbors among neighbors. Nor will it be a surprise if he finds his greatest joy in the days to come in the smallest and quietest of odd jobs about the place.

He declined to be drawn out yesterday as to his future, turning aside good-naturedly repeated questions on that subject. He has several offers from syndicates that want to publish anything he may write, among them a proffer of employment from the Encyclopedia Americana. Mr. Coolidge told the assembled correspondents at his press conference that he did not feel he would be especially successful as a reporter, but that the encyclopedia project was a worthy one and he hoped the press would give it a hand.

Nor would he expand on his reply to another question that he considered minding his own business the greatest thing he had achieved in Washington. He left his questioners to figure that out for themselves, thanked them for their courtesies, and said good-by.

Aids Express Regret.

Yesterday morning's Cabinet meeting found the various department heads dropping in at the White House executive offices one by one, and leaving in the same fashion, as though the meeting were just one of their ordinary semiweekly gatherings, and not the final one of the administration.

As one member put it, "business as usual" was the slogan, but there was, nevertheless, a spirit of regret, which at the conclusion of the session reached embodiment in verbal expression by the Cabinet officers and by the President as well. Mr. Coolidge thanked the department heads for their service to him and to the Nation and expressed a deep personal regret that his close association with them had almost come to an end.

Mr. Coolidge will journey to his home at Northampton on Monday, in a special car attached to the Montrealer, of the Pennsylvania railroad. His car will be detached upon the arrival of the limited at the Massachusetts town shortly before midnight and the then former President will remain on board until morning. Col. James F. Coupal, the White House physician, will accompany him, as well his personal secretary, Edward T. Clark, who is himself a native of Mr. Coolidge's town.

with the illuminated "movie tickers." Private wires of the leading commission houses, particularly those from the South, where some of Wall street's largest, operators are enjoying winter vacations, were taxed to capacity. The cables and radio also swelled the volume of incoming orders.

Two of Wall street's large houses now have branch offices in Paris and the leading watering places of France, where the first quotations are received shortly after 3 p. m. and at frequent intervals thereafter until 8 p. m. (French time), when the New York market closes.

Adams Express, which soared $60.50 a share yesterday, added $25 more to its gain today by touching a new high record at $585, or nearly $200 a share above the year's low. Rossia Insurance ran up more than $15 a share to a new high record at $265.25 and retained nearly all of its gain. Radio Corporation (old stock) jumped $16.50 to a new 1929 high at $413.50, but lost half of its gain. The stock sold as high as $420 a share last year and as low as $333 this year.

Anaconda Jumps $7 a Share.

Anaconda Copper jumped $7 a share, to $155, or more than $100 a share above its 1928 low, but lost half of the day's gain on profit-taking. Practically all of the other active copper shares moved into new high ground on buying influenced by the series of copper price increases this week.

Railroad shares were heavily bought in the late trading on unconfirmed rumors that President-elect Hoover would urge the speeding up of consolidation plans in his inaugural message. The Associated Press index of twenty leading rails gained 2.6 points, but was still about 2½ points below the year's high. Canadian Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Erie common, Lehigh Valley, New York Central, St. Louis Southwestern, Western Maryland and Union Pacific all closed at net gains of $4 to $7.50 a share. Missouri Pacific issues attained record high prices.

HAHN PAINTING SUIT IS GIVEN TO JURORS

Duveen, Art Expert, Pictured in an Effort to Control Kansas City Sale.

ACT IS HELD MALICIOUS

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—The jury which for one month and one day has been listening to the testimony of Mrs. Andre Hahn's $500,000 slander of title suit against Sir Joseph Duveen, art dealer, in the supreme court, retired at 3:13 o'clock this afternoon.

Sir Joseph is being sued for $500,000 by Mrs. Andree Hahn, who contends that he committed slander of title when he said in a newspaper that her "La Belle Ferronniere" was not by Leonardo da Vinci.

Mrs. Hahn has contended that Sir Joseph's statement terminated negotiations with the Kansas City Art Institute for the sale of the portrait for $250,000, and that she was unable to dispose of it thereafter.

George W. Whiteside, for Sir Joseph, pointed out that testimony had shown that the museum had a financial deficit at the time of the proposed deal, nine years ago, and that the $250,000 therefore was not available.

"There is not a line of testimony in this case to show that the head of the Kansas City Art Institute ever saw the article attributed to Sir Joseph," said Mr. Whiteside, "and we can not see how the plaintiff can prove that it caused negotiations for the sale to be broken off."

S. Lawrence Miller, attorney for Mrs. Hahn, throughout his summation pictured Sir Joseph as the chief figure in a coterie of experts controlling and dominating the world of art.

"Here is the man," he said, pointing to Sir Joseph, "who is known as the greatest dealer in art by those who can't see the man behind the mask. He killed the sale of the Hahn painting when he put his foot down and crushed that little dealer in Kansas City. His influence goes all over the world."

Miller asserted that Sir Joseph had no right to interfere in the private negotiations between Conrad Hug, Kansas City art dealer, and the art institute of that city. He contended that he entered the negotiations through the malicious desire to control the sale of art.

TO THE MEMBERS
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

An effort is being made to jam through the House a suspension or repeal of the National Origins Provision of the Immigration Act of 1924 without an opportunity being given to over eighty patriotic, civic, and fraternal organizations to voice their protest to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization which has closed its business for this session.

These societies represent millions of American people. They represent hundreds of thousands of men who have served in the armed forces of the United States, their parents, their wives, their brothers, and sisters, and descendants. They all demand that the National Origins provision be retained and put into effect July 1 of this year as scheduled in the law as it stands.

On the other hand, it is demonstrable by documentary evidence that men affiliated with a society organized in secrecy, with a political program inuring primarily to the benefit of a foreign nation, claim credit for the campaign to repeal the National Origins provision of the Immigration Act of 1924.

Will you surrender to political pressure emanating from such a source?

Will you surrender principles of equity and justice to all nations which have contributed to our population at the behest of hyphenated spokesmen or politicians fearful of alien minorities?

Will you put the interest of a minority or minorities before the national welfare?

Will you take out of the Immigration law a provision which promises to settle the European quota, fairly and permanently?

Are you prepared to take responsibility for exposing the Immigration law to the danger which such tampering will inevitably entail?

The issue in this country today is—or if this thing happens, will be—Americanism vs. Hyphenism.

Let the record vote against this attempt in Congress be a roll of honor of representatives of the people who talk American, act American, and vote American.

Gentlemen, take your stand, the Nation watches.

KELLOGG PACT WINS WITH BRIAND'S AID

Only 12, All Communists, Vote Against Ratification in Chamber of Deputies.

ARBITRATION ACT URGED

Paris, March 1 (United Press).—The French Chamber of Deputies voted ratification of the Kellogg treaty for renunciation of war today after a long speech by Aristide Briand, foreign minister, who urged ratification as an important stride in the attainment of world peace. The vote was 570 to 12.

Briand, in his speech, admitted the correctness of criticisms made in the United States Senate that, in event of war between two signatories of the treaty, no third signatory would be bound to intervene. But he pointed out the United States as an example of a nation whose conscience would be aroused in event of such violation of the pact.

Briand lauded the power of "moral obligation," saying it is stronger and more binding than imagined. He called attention, however, to the importance of closer cooperation with the League of Nations.

France, he asserted, always has taken the leadership in efforts to achieve peace. France's disarmament proposals always have been the "most audacious," he said and revealed that the foreign ministry is ready to examine at the forthcoming Geneva meeting the proposals for holding a new disarmament conference.

Briand discussed the League of Nations at length, pointing out its work in avoiding armed conflict between nations. Immediately after the vote was announced, Briand introduced a project offering France's adherence to an obligatory act of general arbitration. His action was greeted with a tumult of applause, the deputies crying:

"Briand, Briand!"

Only twelve votes against the Kellogg pact—those of Communists—were cast.

Amsterdam, March 1 (U.P.).—The second chamber approved the Kellogg antiwar pact today with only two dissenting votes.

Copenhagen, March 1 (U.P.).—Parliament ratified the Kellogg treaty for renunciation of war today.

Deportations Seen Jones Act Result

Coolidge Feels Dry Law Will Dispose of Undesirable Alien Violators.

(Associated Press.)

President Coolidge feels that many persons, in viewing the Jones bill to increase penalties for violations of the prohibition law, overlooked the aid the legislation would give customs officials in the deportation of alien violators of the dry statutes.

The President has been told by sponsors of the measure, which yesterday received final congressional approval and was sent to the White House for his consideration, that many violators are foreigners and that as the law stands now it is impossible to deport them.

It was pointed out that while the maximum penalty was increased to five years and a fine of $10,000, there is no increase in the minimum penalty, and the court is given discretion in distinguishing between habitual violators and occasional or first offenders.

Garner of Texas Is Named Leader of House Minority

Representative, Succeeding Garrett, May Appoint Alabaman Aid.

(Associated Press.)

House Democrats in caucus yesterday unanimously selected Representative John Garner, of Texas, as their party leader in the next Congress. He will succeed Representative Finis J. Garrett, of Tennessee, who failed last November in a race for the Senate and who has been appointed to the Federal bench by President Coolidge.

Garner, who is now rounding out his thirteenth term in the House as against twelve for Garrett, was nominated for speaker, but inasmuch as the Republicans hold a large majority to elect their candidate for this place he automatically will become the minority leader.

House Republicans will caucus today. Representative Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, present Speaker, has no opposition for the renomination. The selections are equivalent to election, but are not final until the new House organizes.

Garner announced after the caucus broke up that he would name an assistant leader, or whip, Monday. He is understood to be in favor of Representative McDuffie, of Alabama.

Representative Box, of Texas, is the present whip.

Representative Samuel B. Hill, of Washington, won out in a hot fight for a vacancy on the powerful ways and means committee. He was nominated over three others, Representatives Lozier, of Missouri; McKeown, of Oklahoma, and Canfield, of Indiana, for the place made vacant by Representative Dickinson, of Missouri, who was not elected to the next Congress.

Representative Kincheloe, of Kentucky, was chosen chairman of the caucus, succeeding Representative Greenwood, of Indiana. Representative Arnold, of Illinois, was named secretary of the caucus and Mrs. Mary I. Norton representative from New Jersey, assistant secretary.

Although selected as leader, Garner will retain his post as ranking Democrat on the ways and means committee.

A resolution adopted empowered the Democratic members of the latter committee to serve as a committee on committees for the minority party and to choose members for vacancies on the ways and means, rules, agriculture and accounts committees. These are the four committees expected to be organized for the special session.

Garner was placed in nomination by more than a dozen States. A colleague, Representative Summers, of Texas, in nominating him, declared the situation facing the Democratic party "requires a leader of aggression, framed to his duties, of clear judgment, one who can inspire the respect, and in action hold the confidence and support of those whom he leads."

Before presenting Garrett with a watch and chain as a token of their esteem, the caucus listened to a speech by Garner, who cautioned that the Democratic party should not only be critical but also conservative and operate as a unit at all times.

Other nominations by the caucus included South Trimble, of Kentucky, for clerk of the House; C. R. Evans, Nevada, sergeant at arms; Joseph J. Sinnott, Virginia, doorkeeper, and Finis E. Scott, Tennessee, postmaster.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN N. GARNER.

DEFICIENCY REPORT AGREED TO IN HOUSE

Measure, With More Than Million for Dry Work, Is Passed Unopposed.

SENATE WILL ACT NEXT

(Associated Press.)

Withqut a record vote and with no expressed opposition, the House last night agreed to the conference report on the second deficiency appropriation bill. The report carries more than $1,000,000 of the $2,977,000 agreed upon by the conferees late in the day for prohibition enforcement. The Senate has yet to act on the report.

The remainder of the $2,977,000 item, together with the $250,000 fund for the proposed prohibition survey commission to be established by incoming President Hoover, is included in the conference report of the first deficiency bill which the Senate was slated to take up first with the House taking final action.

The prohibition funds in the second deficiency bill report were distributed among the Department of Justice, the Customs Service and the Civil Service Commission.

Representative Wood, of Indiana, ranking Republican on the House appropriations committee, in presenting the report to the House said that the conferees were in agreement on all phases of the prohibition dispute.

Bootleggers' Eviction Is Proposed in Chicago

Chicago, March 1 (A.P.).—Chicago bootleggers would be evicted from their homes without ceremony under a plan proposed today by Edgar B. Elder, assistant United States district attorney in charge of injunctional prohibition enforcement, upon the filing of a temporary injunction against the property which they occupy.

The plan is designed to protect landlords from having property, rented unwittingly to bootleggers, padlocked for a year when the bootlegger is caught. The scheme consists of a lengthy paragraph to be inserted in all future leases providing that the tenancy of the property shall terminate automatically when the dry law is found to have been violated by the occupant.

THE COOLIDGE CABINET.

The Coolidge Cabinet retires with a long record of useful achievements. It has been a smoothly working organization, and has had the benefit of the hearty cooperation and support of the President, without undue interference. Mr. Coolidge has always known what was going on, but his encouragement of initiative in his advisers has enabled them to employ their abilities to the best advantage of the Government and the country. The records made by Messrs. Kellogg, Mellon, New, Jardine, Hoover and James J. Davis are such as would have made any administration illustrious.

The whole world is the beneficiary of Mr. Kellogg's treaty for the renunciation of war. Whether good faith is to be the rule of nations or not, a turning-point has been made by the Kellogg treaty. War is illegitimate. The peoples of all countries are given an opportunity by this treaty to call their governments to account if they attempt to make war. No doubt wars will come, but if they are made in violation of this treaty the public opinion of the world will condemn the aggressors and finally bring them to defeat. The treaty makes war such a hazardous and unprofitable game that even militaristic governments will find it worth while to observe the treaty.

Mr. Kellogg has placed the United States first in the regard of China, brought about peace and constitutional government in Nicaragua, promoted friendship between Peru and Chile, advanced the cause of arbitration throughout Pan America, induced Bolivia and Paraguay to settle their dispute by pacific means, and strengthened good relations between the United States and all countries. It is a brilliant record of achievement, rarely equaled by any Secretary of State.

Mr. Mellon's administration of the national finances speaks for itself in the country's solvency and prosperity. The people want nothing better than to have him remain at the head of the Treasury.

Postmaster General New has made the United States the leader of the world in developing air-mail transportation. He has laid foundations that will never be disturbed. Under his administration the postal system has expanded enormously, with an efficiency that has no parallel in other countries.

The Department of Agriculture, with multifarious activities, has been most capably managed by Mr. Jardine. His courageous opposition to the McNary-Haugen bill and his constructive proposals looking to really effective farm relief entitle him to the gratitude of the farmers of the United States.

Under Herbert Hoover the Department of Commerce has become a powerful agency for the promotion of American prosperity. His unique abilities, given full swing under President Coolidge, have earned him the Presidency.

If James J. Davis is to remain at the head of the Department of Labor the country will be well pleased. It is a difficult place. Mr. Davis has been instrumental in keeping industrial peace and promoting the welfare of men and women in industry. He has enforced the immigration laws impartially, and has brought about several important reforms.

ALIENS WHO MADE GOOD.

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Carl Schurz, which will be celebrated today by his descendants and admirers, serves to focus public attention on the achievements of many foreigners who have come to the United States to make their home. America is still the land of opportunity, where only the Presidency and Vice Presidency are out of the reach of naturalized citizens.

Carl Schurz fled from Germany at the conclusion of the German insurrection of 1848, going to France and then to England before coming to the United States in 1852. He began practicing law in Milwaukee, and soon gained a reputation as a politician and lecturer. Lincoln appointed him Minister to Spain, but he soon resigned to join the Union forces in the Civil War, in which he rose to the rank of a major general. Following the war he served as a newspaper correspondent in Washington and founded a newspaper in Detroit. In 1869 he was elected to the United States Senate from Missouri, and later was appointed Secretary of the Interior by President Hayes. His later years were spent in journalism and national politics.

Schurz was only one of many distinguished naturalized citizens who have held prominent places in the Government. Albert Gallatin, a native of Switzerland, who served in Congress for three terms, as Minister to France, and as Secretary of the Treasury under Jefferson, is another example. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis was not born in the United States. Associate Justice Sutherland was born in England. The roll of distinguished Americans of foreign birth is so long, indeed, that it constitutes a large part of the history of the United States.

CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES.

On the eve of the inauguration the Senate committee which has been investigating presidential campaign expenditures announces that the campaigns of both the winning and the losing candidates were conducted fairly and without corruption. This is a commendable showing for both parties, especially in view of the fact that they spent more than twice as much as has ever before been expended in the election of a President. The committee places the total cost of the campaigns at $16,586,115, of which $9,433,604 was spent by the Republicans, and $7,152,511 by the Democrats. The report shows that the Harding-Cox contest of 1920, in which less than $7,000,000 was spent, was the country's second most expensive presidential fight.

A portion of the money was spent for candidates for Congress and other nominees, but the figures do not include the expenditures of district, county and ward organizations, which the committee found to be "very considerable." Large sums are spent to influence voters and to get them to attend the polls. It is a tribute to American politics that this money was spent without evidence of fraud and corruption.

However, there is a note of warning in the committee report that should be heeded. At present the Federal corrupt practices act applies only to political groups operating in two or more States. Since organizations within a State do not come under the provisions, the national organizations make large contributions to State committees. There is no obligation on the part of the State committee to report the expenditure of such amounts, even though it may have the closest relation to the presidential campaign. It is recommended that the statute be amended so as to include these intrastate organizations.

Another recommendation urges Congress to provide adequate legislation regulating the conduct of conventions and primary elections for nomination of presidential candidates. It is obvious that conventions and preconvention campaigns are as much in need of regulation as elections and the final campaigns. The committee further suggests that more definite statements as to the nature of services rendered be required, and that the borrowing of money by political organizations be more closely regulated and reported.

Since money has come to play such an important part in the election of a President it is important that strict regulation of its expenditure be required. Before the next presidential election Congress would do well to consider the recommendations of the Senate committee.

TWO VITAL MEASURES.

Senator Vandenberg's threat to tie the reapportionment measure to the census bill as an amendment made inevitable the postponement of consideration of the latter until the next session. There was no hope, in view of the opposition to reapportionment that developed in the farm State delegations, of obtaining favorable action upon it at this session. Senator Vandenberg took the position that the census is of little actual necessity except in connection with reapportionment, a view that is generally shared, and there will be no serious loss of time if both bills are enacted at the extra session.

Since the last apportionment the country has gained some 19,000,000 population, until today the States that show the major increases are deprived in no small measure of their constitutional right to representation "according to their respective numbers." The situation has reached a point where every act of Congress is open to challenge as unconstitutional. The Electoral College is similarly unrepresentative and should its complexion remain unchanged, in the event of a close presidential election in 1932 there might be a dangerous challenge of the validity of the returns.

The public has become acquainted with the situation, and it does not seem possible that it will willingly sit by while its representatives permit a handful of selfishly and sectionally actuated men to perpetuate the shameful state of affairs. The extra session will have other work cut out, but reapportionment and the 1930 census are fundamentally important measures which call for enactment. They are of equal importance with farm relief and the tariff.

THE GREAT BULL MARKET.

The stock market, despite the drastic warning of the Federal Reserve Board on the credit situation, had the best February on record. Sales totaled practically 78,000,000 shares, as compared with 110,000,000 shares in January and 47,000,000 shares in the corresponding month a year ago. It is true that a break in prices was precipitated by the Federal Reserve Board warning, but it ran its course in short order. The month was divided into two weeks of disorganized, sinking markets and two weeks of advancing ones, and it closed with the market at within approximately five points of its highest former level. The last day of the month was to all intents and purposes a 5,000,000-share day.

The Federal Reserve Board warning has not had the hoped-for effect. There is positive evidence that the speculator is back in the market, especially the small, amateur speculator. Although on Wednesday the board expressed itself as satisfied with the cooperation which member banks had extended in its program of putting pressure on the money market, and on Thursday it informed the Senate that it "neither assumed the right nor had any disposition to set itself up as an arbiter of security speculation or values," the fact remains that the conservation of credit for commerce and industry has not been accomplished and that the board may feel called upon to take more drastic steps. But what can it do?

It can raise the rediscount rate. This, in the final analysis, is its only practically effective weapon. But raising the rediscount rate, while it would drive money out of Wall street, would have the further effect of tightening money needed in commerce and industry. Business would be inclined to oppose such a step, as would, for the time being at least, the United States Treasury, which desires an easy money market for its March 15 financing. Furthermore, it is not improbable that the market has largely discounted the threat of a rediscount rate increase and that it would not be completely successful.

There is, of course, the possibility that the board may request of Congress additional legislation. In its statement of Thursday it made this suggestion, saying that should it find itself unable to bring about a solution of the problem by its own efforts it would be "glad to give consideration to the possibilities of legislation." Here again, however, is a case in which action, in all probability, would adversely affect business along with the market. Perhaps the board will conclude that natural economic law will punish speculators if they go too far. So long as money is available for business as well as for stock gambling there is little occasion for anxiety on the part of those who do not gamble.

THE RETIRING PRESIDENT

By THEODORE G. JOSLIN

From the Boston Transcript.

Calvin Coolidge was projected into the national arena by a single event—the Boston police strike. But for it, he might well have returned to his law practice in Northampton after completing his second term as governor and long since have been forgotten by those beyond the borders of his native New England. Because of it, or rather because of the qualities in him that it revealed, as well as because of the opportunities that have come to him since that momentous occurrence, he has become not alone a national but an international figure whose record will be written relatively high in world history.

It was as "a one event man," nevertheless, that Mr. Coolidge came to the seat of the Government for his inauguration as Vice President on March 4, 1921. It was that event, nothing more, that had won for him the vice presidential nomination of his party against the wishes of many of its most influential leaders and it was the sweeping Republican victory that had given him the office. He was regarded at the time as being quite well grounded in State affairs, but was looked upon as a fledgling in national affairs—untried, unknown, as likely to fail as to succeed. He aroused curiosity because he was "different" from "the run of the mine" of politicians, for he was regarded as a politician rather than as a statesman. He could succeed if he had the right kind of stuff in him, or he could fade out of the picture if he did not.

What of the same Mr. Coolidge who, on March 4 next, will return to that same rented house in Northampton that he left eight years ago? He has succeeded beyond the expectations even of those who wished him well when a stampeded convention gave him the second place on its party's ticket. He has been equal to the demands made upon him as have few of his predecessors, taking office at a critical period in the country's history and meeting the needs of the times. In consequence, now that he is to retire voluntarily to private life, he has the admiration of a great body of the American electorate and the respect of the peoples of all the civilized world. And, fully as significant, if not as important, the leaders of his own party, long since reconciled to him, and, for that matter, the leaders of the opposition, say with unusual frankness that had he so "chosen"—they have learned at last the meaning of that word—he could have been reelected last November and even now would be preparing for his second full term as President, instead of completing arrangements for the return to his beloved Berkshire Hills and as beloved but more lofty reaches of the Green Mountain State where he first saw the light of day.

The rise of Mr. Coolidge is as interesting as he is unusual. It is not the record of a superman who is faultless, for the retiring President is human like all of us, and, being human, has qualities that many of us do not like and because of those qualities has made mistakes, some, it should be added, however, that he would not repeat if he could live the last eight years over again. But the all-important facts are that his accomplishments have made his shortcomings seem relatively inconsequential and that he is going out of office with a record of which he may be justly proud, leaving a host of friends and very few enemies.

WHITTLING.

By NELLIE E. FEALY.

I choose to leave the scene of battle,
The White House, and the public prattle,
And go where I can whittle, whittle,
Where I can hear the steaming kettle
Singing songs of home and quiet,
Where I can in silence riot
As hills and dales put on dark mantles
And angels light the starry candles.
I want to roam through hills and valleys,
Away from noisy streets and alleys;
There I want to go and whittle,
Caring not a jot or tittle
As I whittle,
Whittle, whittle.

I choose to go away and settle
And let some other try his mettle.
I want to go where I can whittle,
Where I can hear the steaming kettle,
Hear the tireless chirping crickets
Singing from the fields and thickets,
While politicians rant and sizzle
And statesmen's projects slowly fizzle.
I want to drink from Nature's fountains
Among New England's hills and mountains.
There I want to go and whittle,
Caring not a jot or tittle
As I whittle,
Whittle, whittle.

The Real News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

New Congress and the District.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Can the District of Columbia hope for any better treatment from the Seventy-first Congress than it has received from the Congress now to expire? There will remain in both the House and Senate a number of those who have most obstinately stood in the way when other members sought to do what is right and just to the District taxpayers. How much they can influence the new members remains to be seen. It may be possible that some of the new members will come to Washington with prejudices against the District, but they will not all be of that temper.

Congress and the Government officers add greatly to the cost of maintaining the District, yet Congress, or, rather the House of Representatives, steadfastly refuses to place a proper share of the cost on the general Government.

It is the one hope the taxpayers have that the new Congress will be more just, more wise than the one which dies March 4. TAPAYER.

Monday Inaugurations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Nine times a President has been inaugurated on Monday. In 1821, 1849, 1877 and 1917 March 4 fell on Sunday, and the inauguration ceremonies were delayed until the 5th. The first to be inaugurated on Monday was Washington, for his second term. The others were Jefferson (second term), Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln and Herbert Hoover. When March 4 occurred on Sunday in 1821, the question as to taking the oath on that day or postponing it until the Monday following was submitted to Chief Justice Marshall. He gave quite a lengthy opinion, after consulting with the other members of the court: Among other things he said:

"There is an obvious propriety in taking the oath as soon as it can conveniently be taken, & thereby shortening the interval in which the executive power is suspended. But some interval is inevitable. The time of the actual President will expire, and that of the President-elect commence at twelve in the night of the 3d of March. It has been usual to take the oath at midday on the 4th. There has been uniformly & voluntarily an interval of twelve hours during which the Executive power could not be exercised."

e Chief Justice found no objection to postponing the actual taking of the oath on the 5th, as it was not likely that anything pressing would occur in the meantime. If it was necessary to exercise executive power, the oath could be taken at an earlier hour.

HISTORY.

Two Good Suggestions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since The Washington Post is such a well-known and recognized conservative newspaper in the Capital City of our country, I have presumed to address you in order to submit for your consideration two ideas which I have had for years.

The first idea is—A Governors' Week each year in Washington.

In the spring would probably be more suitable for several reasons. The temperature at this time of year is very satisfactory, also all outdoors is most beautiful, parks, &c. Congress would probably be in session and each governor would have a favorable opportunity to meet personally the senators and representatives.

The man who probably knows the affairs of any State as well as, and probably better than, any one else is its governor. He is the one person usually most conversant with a State's political, social, labor, industrial, financial and economic conditions.

It would be excellent were each State legislature to pass the necessary act and appropriate the necessary funds whereby its governor will attend the conference of governors each year at the time suitable to, and designated by, the President.

The first conference during governors' week might be that in which all the governors and the President and his Cabinet met together. Then might come a conference of governors with the senators and the representatives.

Such a week in Washington would bring all governors in contact with one another and no doubt bring about a better understanding of the affairs of each State by all the other States, as well as the relation of each State to our National Government. It would be the same as an annual meeting of the board of directors of our country's internal affairs.

Of course during such a week in our Nation's Capital there would be social festivities as well as the conferences, which would add to the enjoyment of the sojourn of the governors and those accompanying them.

The second idea may be considered perhaps a matter of sentiment. It is that our President, sometime during his term of office, visit, formally or informally, each State in our country. Much good may come of such visits, such as a better feeling of cooperation, loyalty, inspiration and honorable pride in seeing "Our President," particularly in regard to our young men and women, and especially the children, who will be the leaders in our country tomorrow.

JOHN W. W. CUMMING,
Commander U. S. Navy, Newport, R. I., Feb. 26.

Success Comes to Men as Limbs Are Added to a Tree.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YOU may believe in a divinity that shapes our ends, or you may not, but if you have ordinary powers of observation you are aware that all things are guided by law.

There is a law of health, and a law of success, and a law of love, and a law of growth, and all of them function now as they did when things began.

When men and beasts and the grass in the fields adjust themselves to the law, they develop and flourish, and when they oppose the law they get hurt.

That itself is a law, and the base of all law: obey and prosper, or disobey and suffer.

These things are known even to children, but few realize how beneficent the laws are and how certainly they work for good if they are trusted.

It is commonly supposed that the successful man willed to succeed and made his growth as a result of conscious effort, but in nearly all cases he merely adjusted himself to the law's requirements and let nature take its course.

The successful man is a chip on the broad bosom of a river, thrown there by chance; and the law carries him on to the sea.

Does the seed in the ground take thought how it shall grow?

You know it does not.

The seed merely obeys the law of growth, and the law says: "Send out roots to gather food and moisture from the good earth, and send up a leaf to gather food from the air and drink the rain and absorb the rays of the sun."

The seed obeys and becomes a great tree; but if it does not obey it dies, or, obeying in part, becomes a dwarf and a weakling.

Perhaps it can not obey, because the soil is poor or the air foul or the sun obscured by greater plants; but whatever the cause of its failure to obey, the result is the same.

Man is like the seed, save in one particular: he can move if his environment makes abundant life impossible.

He need take no anxious thought for the morrow, how he shall grow, nor devise schemes for his own development.

The child, by taking thought, can not add an inch to its height nor an ounce to its weight.

Development, like the germ of life itself, is given and controlled by a Power greater than man.

Man has only to resign himself to the law, as the seed does, and passively submit to the workings of the law.

In business, in love or in health, he will be carried on to success as inevitably as the plant grows—as surely as the chip is carried by the river to the sea.

Learn the law and obey it, and the law does the rest.

PRESS COMMENT.

Culture Pursues.

Buffalo Courier-Express: Tunney likes books and Schmeling likes to paint pictures. How culture does pursue the prize ring!

Sure Cure.

Milwaukee Journal: An excellent cure for sore eyes: A glimpse of the handsome portrait of Salmon P. Chase on our new $10,000 bills.

Yeah?

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: "Nothing is so lowly that it may not hope to rise," says Dr. Straton. That's so. Just look at liver.

The Next Need.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Chicago gangsters probably will not be satisfied until they perfect a super long-range gun to fire at their Florida colony.

A Cold!

Louisville Courier-Journal: Those premature robins probably have learned by this time that the early bird catches something else besides worms.

He Ought to Know.

Detroit News: A debate is on as to whether Pat Crowe, former all-around bad man, has committed suicide. Mr. Crowe is taking the negative.

The Sad Might Have Been.

Houston Post-Dispatch: Every Democrat knows that the big show about to be pulled off at the Nation's Capital isn't going to be as impressive as it might have been.

Mass. and Wis. Agree.

Akron Beacon-Journal: Wisconsin has come in favor of 2.75 beer and Massachusetts wants the eighteenth amendment repealed. That's the first time in history that Wisconsin and Massachusetts have been on the same side of any question of liberalism.

Reapportionment.

Boston Globe: A bill for the reapportionment of Congress has been laid aside by the Senate, but Massachusetts should worry. This State would probably lose one congressman and it is doubtful if the quality of the House would be improved by allowing some other State to elect him.

Oklahoma's Not Alone.

Oklahoma Oklahoman: Wisconsin leaders are appealing for the institution of legal proceedings to oust their governor from office. The State Treasurer of Ohio goes to trial on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. The State auditor of Kentucky wins nothing better than a hung jury on his second trial for a felony. The legislature of Maryland is investigating various and sundry State officials. California is threatening to impeach a judge charged with accepting a $2,500 present from a wealthy litigant. Mississippi has just tried and acquitted a national committeeman charged with selling postoffices to the highest bidder. Oklahoma is by no means the only State that is proceeding against men honored with election to high and responsible office, for all the disposition of the country generally to give us a veritable first-page monopoly.

Damrosch Returns to Air Tonight

Overture to "Fingal's Cave" on His Program. Messages to Byrd at 11 P. M. Over WGY—Borah Will Talk Over WMAL.

Dr. Walter Damrosch will return to the air tonight after a vacation, when he conducts the General Electric Orchestra in a concert at 9 o'clock. The program follows:

Overture to "Fingal's Cave," Mendelssohn; andante and finale from Symphony No. 1, Kalinikow; andante from Serenade for Strings, Tschaikowsky; "Danse Macabre," Saint-Saens; "Whispering of the Flowers," Von Blon; and "Shepherd's Hey," Grainger.

Vassili Sergeievitch Kalinikow wrote but two symphonies, although he completed two symphonic poems before ill-health compelled him to relinquish his position as conductor of the Italian Opera at Moscow. Two movements from his first and best-known symphony are played here.

Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre" is a gruesome picture of skeletons dancing on their graves to the fiddling of the musician, death. The rattling of the skeletons is plainly heard in the xylophones, but the dawn comes and the weird dancers return to their graves.

The selections for the Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra from WRC at 10 o'clock tonight are "Persian Rose," "Japanese Sandman," "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," "Hallelujah," "La Barcarolle," "Ramona," "Old Man Sunshine," "In the Shadows," "Rio Rita," "Spain," "Varsity Drag," "Rackety-Coo," "Sympathy," "Was It a Dream?" "Oh, Miss Hannah," "Dinah," "Something Goes Ting-a-ling," and "Valencia."

The Werdman Park Dance Orchestra will present an additional hour of dance music through the station.

Earlier in the evening there will be a talk, "Washington's Welcome to the Inaugural Visitor," by Mrs. John J. O'Connor, the White House dinner music, the Bible talk and a radio address by Dr. Julius Klein, of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, and prominently mentioned for the Secretary of Commerce in the Hoover administration.

A Foreign Policy Association luncheon and the RCA demonstration hour are the highlights of WRC's afternoon offerings.

Gov. Roosevelt, of New York; Mayor Walker and Daniel Carter Beard, of the Boy Scouts, will be among those to send radio messages to Commander Richard E. Byrd and his crew in the Antarctic at 11 o'clock tonight through Station WGY. The program will be transmitted through 2-XAF and 2-XAD, the short-wave transmitters at Schenectady, and over the regular broadcasting wave of WGY also.

Senator William E. Borah will speak from the studios of Station WMAL at 10 o'clock this evening. A musical background will be furnished by the U. S. Army Band.

The Honolulans, the Saturday Nighters and the Everglades Orchestra are among the musical organizations to be featured during the evening.

Another studio staff party will be staged by the personnel of Station WOL at 6:30 o'clock this evening. A two-hour dance program and "Amos 'n' Andy" are other features from the station.

Station WJSV will start its regular Saturday evening national radio revue at 9:15 o'clock tonight, presenting Big Ed and his harmonica, Pa Brown and the Little Browns, the Hilo Boys, Woodville Brown, the Southern troubadour; Fran Trappe, Fiddlers, and the Blue Ridge Mountain Harmony Boys.

Old King Tut will give a short program at 7:35 o'clock.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AN EVENING AT HOME.

When comes the evening hour and I
Have heard no call to journey forth
Or east or west or south or north
To dance while night time hurries by
Or skill at auction bridge to try
I say, "Well, nights like this are best!
I'll just stretch on the couch and rest."

My lady, wondrous sweet and fair,
Who long has shared my company
And has advenutred much with me,
Says quickly: "If you nestle there,
You'll fall asleep. And I declare
All evening long I'll sit alone
And hear you snore and grunt and groan."

"My dear," I vow, "I'll merely doze.
How good it seems to be alone!
How few such happy nights are known!
I'll take a little brief repose,
Nor shall I once my eyelids close
And when you've put your sewing by We'll read together, you and I."

My lady shakes her lovely head
Almost as if she doubted me.
A sneer, I fancy, I can see.
The next I hear is: "Time for bed!
Our pleasant, carefree hours have fled,
You've slept our happy evening through
As I predicted you would do."

What Today Means to You

March 1.

PISCES.

IF March 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 9:30 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.; the danger periods are from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9:30 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Today's planetary aspects are quite benign, and indicate that, although the day may not be productive of anything of a startling nature, it will be replete with contentment and happiness.

Children born today will be rather difficult to understand and manage; they will, even in early years, prefer solitude to companionship and, in the presence of strangers, will be shy and retiring. They promise to be students, but what they learn will not be apparent, except in rare moments, to others.

You have a great deal of natural ability, but little self-confidence. You are exceptionally intelligent and know a great deal more than that with which you are credited. You should cultivate self-salesmanship, and not hide your light under a bushel.

You are faithful and trustworthy in the performance of anything directed by others, but fearful and hesitant in your own undertaking. You are always crossing bridges before you come to them and anticipate difficulties when none exist. On the other hand, and in spite of this, your disposition is bright and sunny, and you have a kindly spirit that draws people to you. Your friends are stanch and true and many make you their confident.

You are upright in action, and capable of attaining a high degree of perfection in any line to which you apply your energy and ability. You are dependable, altruistic and loveable, and, in your own quiet and unobtrusive manner, promote harmony and good fellowship wherever you may be.

You like pleasant environment and always endeavor to eliminate what is disagreeable. Discord in any form jars all your sensibilities and you will go a long way to secure peace. The stars say that you will have an ideal home life, and you will give to and receive from your mate a deep, constant love.

Successful people born today:
DeWitt Clinton, statesman.
Sam Houston, statesman and soldier.
Charles E. Warburton, editor.
John A. McCall, insurance expert.
William C. Carl, organist.
Samuel Untermeyer, lawyer.

Coolidge Gets Microphone Gift Today

McNamee to Make Presentation of Instrument President Has Used. Announcing Stars Arrive for Inauguration.

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

As a memento to President Coolidge, who has proved to be one of the most popular radio speakers, the National Broadcasting Co. will today present to him the microphone through which his voice has been transmitted to the people of the United States. The presentation will be made at the White House at noon by Graham McNamee, the veteran radio announcer, and Ralph Edmunds, manager of Station WRC.

Just as President-elect Hoover, as Secretary of Commerce, guided the destinies of radio from its inception as a program broadcasting proposition, Mr. Coolidge has been the first President to really avail himself of the new science.

Even so, the occasion when he spoke directly over the radio have been comparatively few. These, according to Secretary Sanders, were his Thanksgiving proclamation, a forestry week proclamation, and the presentation of the Congressional Medal to Edison, all of which took place from his study in the White House. The other times were when regular set speeches of the President, such as at the budget meetings, the Red Cross, or those in his travels, were broadcast.

It was said at WRC yesterday that altogether Mr. Coolidge's voice has been heard only sixteen times since he has been President.

Although himself not enthusiastic about broadcasting in the beginning, the President, quick to see its possibilities in aiding him to reach the people, readily adapted himself to the new science. Because of his naturally good radio voice and quiet demeanor, the task of the broadcasters in presenting him has been a pleasant one.

So far as known there has been only one untoward incident in Mr. Coolidge's broadcasting career. This was at night, when speaking from the Washington Auditorium, the single line which was carrying his voice to WRC's transmitter on Park road went down. The President, entirely unaware of the break, went calmly through his speech, until those in charge of the broadcasting discovered, to their consternation, he had been talking into a dead microphone for more than 40 minutes.

The first suggestion was that someone had intentionally cut the wire, but two theories were subsequently advanced, one that a scene shifter, in moving some scenery, had displaced the wire, and the other, that the line had been temporarily affected by the aurora borealis, which was playing havoc with telephone and telegraph wires in this part of the country on that particular night.

Radio activities in connection with the broadcasting of the inauguration will be quickened today with the arrival of Graham McNamee, direct from the fight at Miami Beach; Milton J. Cross, John B. Daniel, William S. Lynch and Paul Dumont, all National Broadcasting Co. announcers. Phillips Carlin, assistant Eastern program director of the NBC, accompnied by G. W. Johnstone, from station WEAF, arrived yesterday from New York.

H. A. Bellows, of WCOO, is due back today from a hasty visit to his station in Minneapolis. Mr Bellows will be in charge of the broadcasting of the Columbia network and will confer here today with Sam Pickard, vice president of the Columbia System, and Milton Baker, of station WMAL, with regard to last-minute arrangements.

The contingent of New York announcers for the Columbia System, headed by Ted Husing, William S. Hedges and Norman Brokenshire, are expected to arrive tonight.

For many of these announcers returning to Washington for the inaugural will be like "old home week," inasmuch as Messrs. Cross, Daniel, Brokenshire, Husing and Lynch at one time or another have been connected with station WRC in Washington. Another Washingtonian back for the broadcast is George McElrath, former engineer of station WRC, and in charge of the installation of inaugural broadcasting equipment for the NBC.

Also four of these announcers will be back in practically the same roles which they so ably filled during the Lindbergh broadcast here nearly two years ago, namely, Graham McNamee, Milton J. Cross, Phillips Carlin and John B. Daniel.

An unusual procedure today will be a rehearsal of their different duties by those connected with the NBC broadcast. It is felt that better service will be given listeners if each announcer has had an opportunity to familiarize himself thoroughly with his part in the greatest broadcast so far attempted.

Jane Claire INTERPRETS the MODE

Three new tub frock designs for clever fingers to copy! With or without sleeves, in washable materials, they are ideal for school and summer resort wear, or as house dresses. (Dahray Designs.)

New York, March 1, 1929

THE ad writers like to call them "tub frocks." Yes, you guessed it—I had to be one myself, an ad writer, not a tub frock—before I found this out.

And all they're trying to say is that they are gowns that may be washed, and they are trying to avoid calling them summer frocks or house dresses.

Personally, I like dresses that can be washed, especially nowadays, when everything is washable, even—whether you believe it or not—velvet.

Selection of Materials.

When you are selecting the material for a frock that is going to be washed you choose some that require starching—and some that do not. In the latter you have crepe de chine and crepe marocain, Chinese brocade and silk broadcloth, then linens, voiles and organdies, which you may starch or not, as you please. Most of them are greatly improved by immersion in a thin starch.

Tub frocks, which do not require starching, you can usually wash yourself. Always put them on a wooden hanger in the shade, preferably indoors, always roll them up while still damp in preference to redampening them for ironing, and iron them with a very hot iron.

My, aren't we laundryish today!

So, I have designed three tub frocks for you today, easy ones to copy, too—and easy to launder. You're quite welcome.

And how many do you think we have designed for you in the leaflet for next week? No less than six, and we not only design them for you, but tell you exactly how much material it takes to make each one, and how to cut it out and make it.

Each frock entirely new and incorporating the latest spring lines—and two of them especially designed for their slenderizing effect.

Sit right down and get a stamped self-addressed envelope ready to send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet. You know you are going to want some new house dresses, or if not house dresses, then some new summer frocks for your vacation. Now is the time to look them over, you know.

Parfums.

Uncle Ray's Corner

NOW we have started the month of March, which was named after Mars, the god of war, worshiped by the ancient Romans.

We have a reason to call this month after a war god, for it is surely a month of warring winds.

There is a saying, "If March comes in like a lion, it will go out like a lamb." This means that if the beginning of the month is stormy, the end will be mild and pleasant. It is also supposed to work the other way around—a mild beginning, a stormy ending.

If you will test that saying through your life, you will find that it is true sometimes but not always.

In three weeks spring will be here "officially." Many persons wonder whether it will be a pleasant spring—that is a hard thing to tell in advance. However, we can safely say that there will be some beautiful spring days when our blood will rise with the joy of living.

In our corner we shall follow the springtime with stories about birds and other creatures of the outdoors.

I have a letter from an 18-year-old reader which reminds me of life in the open:

"Dear Uncle Ray—The reason I like animals, I guess, is because I was born and raised in the country (where I accidentally stepped on a bumble-bee with my bare foot!).

"Old Nature was in tune. How I loved to watch the shiny fish swimming in the brooks, the merry birds singing in the tree tops, squirrels jumping and gliding from tree to tree!

"At first I used to be afraid of snakes, but not any more. I've handled dozens of snakes. One bit me, but I'm still alive and that's proof that he was not poison. I enjoy your animal stories in the corner—the more the merrier. LESTER RICHARDSON."

I'm glad the snake which bit you, Lester, wasn't a rattler. Most snakes are harmless, it is true, but the rattler family is no fun to play with!

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

Making Whoopee.

TO keep up with new words and expressions for old devices of man and the devil is some task for one who deals with the problems of youth.

Even the dictionaries and my impressive thesaurus (the book is not so expensive as the name) of English words and phrases, help very little.

"Ho hum." "Blind dates." "Heavy date." "Collegiate." "Giggle water." And now it's "Whoopee."

That the term is not limited to youth is evident when a mother writes: "I believe in hiring a high school girl for 25 cents a night to come in and look after my little child while we go out and make whoopee."

Exactly what she means neither you nor I know. If she has had limited experience in life, "making whoopee" may mean a game of bridge. If she drives a car and wants to show off her speed, she may be "making whoopee" when she gets the traffic officer interested enough to chase her.

If her oldest daughter is going out for a good time on a week-end party, the girl may be "making whoopee." If her husband likes "giggle water," he is "making whoopee" when he takes a hard drink.

For the benefit of the older generation (and asking their pardon for the language), I may say that in "our day" (just as though every day isn't our day) that "making whoopee" meant raising—well, you oldsters know what it meant.

And what different interpretations were put on our old-fashioned whoopee. I've seen girls from the Middle West who were "out for a good time" and thought they were getting it when they crawled into a basement in Greenwich Village, ate inferior food, prepared and served under unhygienic conditions, in a room filled with an indescribable blend of aromatic fish, garlic and cigarettes. They sat around tipsy, frail, green-painted tables with red walls hitting them in the eyes. That was "whoopee" in the good old days. And with what a mysterious air they wrote home about it!

The old nag sweating along at 10 miles per hour has a mechanical successor that does 60. "Postoffice" in the parlor is now staged in a sedan.

The kids of yesterday were smart. Ask dad; he knows. The kids of today think they're smart. We don't have to ask them—they tell the world.

Ho hum! The old human emotions are still with us, even if we have telephotos, radios and televisions.

When I delve into an edition of next year's thesaurus I expect to find the word "whoopee," and after it some such definition as "raising the Old Nick."

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

From Now On an Epidemic.

We have a fine boy, but he refuses to go to school any longer, though he is only 15. He says, "I don't want to be a teacher or an office man, anyhow; I want to be a mechanic." His pockets are forever full of screws and his hands are black with grease. He is always working over some old engine. We can afford to send him to a mechanical school, but what is a boy going to do nights in a big strange city?

DISTURBED PARENTS.

Answer—Fortunately in your case, as in many others who write me, there is a public day school and technical school near by. I shall send you a letter of introduction to the principal. You take your boy with you, prepare to stay two or three days, look over the school and the principal. Find a boarding place for the boy. Have him come home every week-end. Let this boy put three-fourths of his school day into mechanical things and two-fifths in related subject matter.

An Inquiring Mind.

When my husband comes home from a hard day's work and wants to sit down and rest our boy starts a rolling barrage of questions. Help! What'll we do?

TIRED.

Answer—Well, mother, I'd say that's a pretty fine disease for a boy to have. It shows an alert mind. Don't begrudge the time it takes. It is one way in which a child gets the knowledge he must have. And, alas and alack, this time in a boy's life is all too short. You'll miss it when it is gone. Before you and dad realize it, this young man will be answering your questions. Meantime the points you raise and some others are fully taken up in my leaflet, "A Child's Intelligence," which you may have for the usual S. A. S. E.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

PREVENTING TEETH DECAY.

MRS. MELLANBY is of the opinion that there is a simple method of preventing decay of teeth. If this is confirmed it should prove of great value with children and of some value with other people. However, it is children who are the outstanding losers from caries. Older people lose their teeth because of conditions around the teeth rather than of the teeth, such as pyorrhea and so-called apical abscess.

In a series of experiments Mellanby and Pattison found that radiated sterols such as radiosterol and ergosterol were almost specific in their power to prevent the teeth from decaying. It is effective in arresting decay as well as in preventing it. It should prove serviceable for adults as well as for children.

In this experiment a group of children of the age at which the teeth decay fastest were given a standard test. In addition they had a daily dose of the sterol preparation. Tooth decay in the group was brought well under control. Some teeth were drawn and studied under the microscope. The tooth structure in the neighborhood of tooth cavities was carefully studied. It was plain that the tooth tissues speedily started to repair the breaking down processes.

The children were first put on a diet consisting of a daily allowance of 1½ pints of milk, 10 ounces bread, 1 ounce butter, ¼ ounce cooking fat, 1 ounce sugar, 1 ounce jam, ½ ounce rice, ½ pound meat, 1 ounce bacon, 5 ounces potatoes, 5 ounces other vegetables, ½ egg, ½ ounce cocoa. Fruit was given four times a week. In spite of this diet the tendency to cavity formation continued. Dentists and nutrition experts will recall that the Mellanbys have been experimenting with diet in relation to tooth decay for several years.

In a general way they have been of the opinion that diet was not of major importance in tooth decay. When Mellanby and Pattison shifted from a study of carbohydrates and lime foods to a study of vitamins they seemed to pass from lean ore to pay dirt.

Their opinion is that the active agent is vitamin "D." Vitamin "A" is of little importance in this picture. They get pretty good vitamin "D" effects by giving cod liver oil and egg yolk, but these sterol bodies they found much superior.

BABY NEEDS MIXED DIET.

Mrs. G. writes: We have a baby 8 months old who is bottle fed. We use [illegible]

Will you please tell me why the c[illegible] are hard if not given a laxative? We have to give her some kind of a laxative every day. She weighs 14½ pounds.

REPLY.

As you get her on a mixed diet she will be troubled less. She should be taking fruit juices and cod liver oil daily. Both are slightly laxative. If you have not done so, begin with thin cereals and gradually add breads, soups and vegetables.

When your cook quits—don't worry. Phone Main 4205 and put a small classified advertisement to work for you. Chances are your new cook will report in time to serve breakfast.

WORK ON BRIDGE

AUCTION BRIDGE AND CONTRACT BRIDGE.

"The Auction Player unfamiliar with Contract is apt to be troubled by the big difference between Auction and Contract values for tricks, under-tricks, premiums, slams and rubbers, etc. The vulnerability feature of Contract is also apt to be confusing.

"As a special service to our readers, Mr. Work will be glad to send you upon request, complimentary, a complete statement explaining all these new features, provided you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for his reply. Mr. Work also answers all Auction and Contract questions without charge."

A full explanation has been given in this column of the strength required for suit-bids at Contract. As they are based upon an accurate measurement of the trick-taking value of the hands, they are not especially difficult and might be called "truth-telling bids." The nearer the bidder comes to telling the truth, the easier it is for his partner to declare effectively. When declaring after partner's suit-bid it is equally important that an accurate measurement be taken of the hand.

Without normal support for it, partner's suit-bids of one or two should not be raised or jumped; but when he has bid three of the suit, no particular length in his suit is needed. Normal support is three cards of the suit, or two of which one is the Ace or King; but with any two-card holding, great conservatism should be shown in jumping a one-bid or two-bid because the partner may have started with a four-card suit and if so the adversaries have seven cards of it.

When jumping partner's suit there are many elements to consider in the hand. In the first place, there are high cards in partner's suit and in side suits—Aces, Kings and Queens in the next place, there is length (i.e. more than three cards) in partner's suit; and in the third place, there is the ability to ruff some other suit (i.e. the holding of a doubleton, singleton or void suit). While shortness in a side suit is not an asset for an original bidder to consider, it is a great asset for a player who is raising or jumping his partner's suit-bid. Consequently all three elements must be considered when valuing a hand for jumping purposes.

I have prepared a complete and yet easily understood table, showing the way to measure the value of each particular asset the partner may have to help a suit-bid and the count that justifies each jump or raise; it will be given in the Contract article which will appear next Friday.

YOUR INCOME TAX

To obtain a deduction for traveling expenses, which form an important item in the returns of many taxpayers, certain regulations must be observed. The taxpayer is required to attach to his return a statement showing the nature of business in which engaged, number of days away from home during taxable year on account of business, total amount of expenses incidental to meals and lodging while absent from home on business, and total amount of "other expenses incidental to travel and claimed as a deduction." Among the "other expenses" are tips, which are held to be a part of traveling expenses, provided they are reasonable in amount. Traveling expenses are deductible only when the trip is on business. They are limited to such expenses as are reasonable and necessary in the conduct of the business and directly attributable to it. Examples are payment for the use of a sample room or the hire of vehicles in visiting customers.

He Faw Down and Go Boom!

The Children

By Edith Wharton

A sparkling serial story by one of America's foremost novelists at the gleaming heights of her power.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Martin Boyne, a civil engineer, who has been kept busy on projects in all parts of the world, is taking an ocean trip. He is looking forward to another fortnight of solitude, when the steward places a chair next to his tagged "Mrs. Cliffe Wheater." Cliffe Wheater was a schoolmate of his at Harvard. His wife was a friend of those days. Boyne is puzzled by the varied types of children in the entourage and further mystified by the leader. He is told by the gray-haired woman called "Scopy" her name is Judith. She is the oldest child of the Wheaters. The oldest boy's name is Terry, and his health is poor. "Scopy" recounts the tangled love affairs of the Wheaters to explain the group for Boyne. Boyne begins to mull over his own affairs, particularly with a Mrs. Sellars. Hitherto "unattainable," he recalls her husband has died. Terry, the heir-apparent to the Wheater fortune, asks Boyne to intercede on his behalf with his parents to obtain a tutor. Complying with the Wheaters' request he hires a young Englishman. Boyne leaves the Wheaters with their new yacht and their retinue at Venice and journeys to the chalet of Mrs. Sellars. She agrees to marry him, but refuses to set a day. They are interrupted by a visit from Judith Wheater, who announces that they have fled the Wheaters because another break seems imminent and the children refuse to be again parted. Boyne goes back to Venice in an effort to keep the children together. He is partly successful in that. He returns to the mountains. No change is to be made immediately.

CHAPTER XVII (Continued).

He settled himself in his chair and tried to take up the narrative. But wherever he grasped it, the awkward thing seemed to tumble out of his hold, as if, in that respect, too, he were always taking the wrong parcel out of his pocket. To begin with, it was so difficult to explain to Mrs. Sellars that, after the Wheaters had been reassured as to the safety and well-being of the children, the negotiations had been carried on piecemeal, desultorily, parenthetically, between swims and sunbaths, cocktails and fox trots, poker and baccara—and, as a rule, in the presence of all the conflicting interests.

To make Mrs. Sellars understand that Lady Wrench, her husband and Gerald Ormerod had assisted at the debates as a matter of course was in itself a laborious business; to convey to her that Mrs. Lullmer—still notorious as the former Mrs. Westway—had likewise been called upon to participate, as Joyce's possible successor, was to place too heavy a strain on her imagination. Her exquisite aloofness had kept her in genuine ignorance of the compromises and promiscuities of modern life, and left on her hands the picture of a vanished world wherein you didn't speak to people who were discredited, or admit rivals or enemies to your confidence; and she punctuated Boyne's narrative with murmurs of dismay and incredulity.

"But in that crowd," Boyne explained, "no man is another man's enemy for more than a few minutes, and no woman is any other woman's rival. Either they forget they've quarreled, or some social necessity—usually a party that none of them can bear to miss—forces them together, and makes it easier to bury their differences. But generally it's a simple case of forgetting. Their memories are as short as a savage's, and the feuds that savages remember have dropped out. They recall only the other primitive needs—food, finery, dancing. I suppose we are relapsing into a kind of bloodless savagery," Boyne concluded.

Besides, he went on, in the Wheater set they could deal with things only collectively; alone, they became helpless and inarticulate. They lived so perpetually in the limelight that they required an audience—an audience made up of their own kind. Before each other they shouted and struck attitudes; again like savages. But the chief point was that nobody could stay angry—not however much they tried. It was too much trouble, and might involve too many inconveniences, interfere with too many social arrangements. When all was said and done all they asked was not to be bothered—and it was by gambling on that requirement that he had finally gained his point.

And your point is, exactly——"

Well, as he got closer to it. Boyne was not even sure that it could be defined as a point. It was too shapeless and undecided; but he hoped it would serve for a time—and me was everything; especially for Terry.

"They've agreed to leave the children together, and to leave them here, for the next three or four months. The longest to bring round was Lady Wrench. Her husband has taken a fancy to Zinnia, and he's so mortally bored by life in general that his wife clutches at anything that may amuse him. Luckily, according to the terms of the divorce——"

"Which divorce?" Mrs. Sellers interpolated, as though genuinely anxious to keep her hand on all the clews.

"Wheater versus Zinnia Lacrosse. It was Wheater who got the divorce from the present Lady Wrench. Legally he has the final say about Zinnie, so the mother had to give in, though she has a right to see the child a stated intervals. But of course my battle royal was over Chipstone; if the Wheaters had insisted on keeping Chipstone till their own affairs were settled in court the whole combination would have been broken up."

"And how did you contrive to rescue Chipstone?"

Boyne sank down more deeply into his armchair, and looked up at the low ceiling. Then he straightened himself, and brought his gaze to the level of Mrs. Sellars'. "By promising to stay here and keep an eye on the children myself. That's my trial-guardianship."

He gave a slight laugh, which she failed to echo.

"Martin!"

His eyes continued to challenge hers. "Well——?"

She turned the sapphire hesitatingly on her finger. "But these children—you'd never even heard of them till you met them on board your steamer a few weeks ago . . ."

"No; that's true."

"You've taken over a pretty big responsibility."

"I like responsibilities."

Mrs. Sellars was still brooding over her newly imprisoned finger. "It's very generous of you to assume this one in such a hurry. Usually one doesn't have to go out of one's way to find rather more of them than one can manage. But in this case, I wonder——"

"You wonder?"

"Well, I had understood from Terry—and also from your friend Judith—that what all the children really want is to go to America; to Mrs. Wheater's mother, isn't it?"

"Yes; that's it; and I hope they'll pull it off by-and-by. But at present the Wheaters won't hear of it. I never for a moment supposed they'd consent to putting the ocean between themselves and Chip. My only chance was to persuade them that, now Terry's in the mountains, they'd better leave him here, and the others with him, till the hot weather's over. With those people it's always a question of the least resistance—of temporizing and postponing. My plan saved everybody a certain amount of mental effort; so they all ended by agreeing to it. But of course it's merely provisional."

"Happily," Mrs. Sellars smiled, and added, as if to correct the slight acerbity of the comment: "For you must see, my dear, that you're taking a considerable risk for the future——"

"What future?"

"Why—suppose anything goes wrong during these next few months? You'll be answerable for whatever may happen. With seven children—and one of them already grown up!"

Boyne frowned, and stirred uneasily in his chair. "If you mean Judith, in some ways she's as much of a child as the youngest of them."

Mrs. Sellars smiled confidentially at her ring. "So a man would think, I suppose. But you forget that I've had four days alone with her . . . She's a young lady with very definite views."

"I should hope so!"

"I agree with you that it makes her more interesting—but conceivably it might lead to complications."

"What sort of complications?"

"You ought to know better than I do—since you tell me you've been frequenting the late Mrs. Westaway at the Lido. Judith doesn't pretend to hide the fact that she lived for a summer in the bosom of that edifying family."

"She doesn't know it's anything to hide. That's what's so touching——"

"And so terrifying. But I won't sit here preaching prudence; you'd only hate me for it. And all this time those poor infants are waiting." She stood up with one of her sudden changes of look and tone; as if a cloud had parted, shedding a ray of her lost youth on her. He noticed for the first time that she was all in white, a rose on her breast, and a shady hat hanging from her arm. "Do go down and see them at once, dear. It's getting late. I'll walk with you to the foot of the hill; then I must come back and write some letters . . ." He smiled at the familiar formula, and she took up his smile. "Yes; really important letters—one of them to Aunt Julia," she bantered back. "And besides, the children will want to have you all to themselves." Magnanimously she added: "I must say they all behaved beautifully while you were away. They seemed to feel that they must do you credit. And as for Terry—I wish he were mine! When the break-up comes, as of course it will, why shouldn't you and I adopt him?"

She put on her hat and linked her arm in Boyne's for the walk down the hill; but at the fringe of the wood, where the path dipped to the high road, she left him.

"You'll come back and dine? I've got some news for you too," she said as he turned down to the village.

Injuries From Fall Bring $60,000 Suit

Samuel Perry, of the Coolidge Apartments, 3100 Wisconsin avenue northwest, was sued for a total of $60,000 damages in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Margaret MacLachlan and her husband, Archibald MacLachlan, of 3204 Seventeenth street northeast. The suits grew out of a fall by Mrs. MacLachlan down a stairway of an apartment building at 3220 Twelfth street northeast, owned by Perry.

Through her counsel, Samuel M. Boyd, Mrs. MacLachlan declared she visited her sister at the Twelfth street apartment on March 5, 1928, and upon leaving, slipped and fell on a stairway, the steps of which, she said, were slippery. She charged Perry and his employes were negligent in not keeping the steps clear of the slippery substance. She suffered injuries to her spine and a fractured ankle, for which she asked the court to award her $50,000. The husband asked $10,000 for loss of his wife's services.

Black, in Airplane, Reaches Pretoria

Baltimore Publisher Flies From Northern Rhodesia; Carries Mail Bags.

Pretoria, Transvaal, March 1 (A.P.).—Van Lear Black, the Baltimore publisher, who is on an airplane journey from London to Capetown, arrived here today after a one-stop flight from Livingstone, Northern Rhodesia. He brought with him a story of congested commerce and halted travel at Livingstone, caused by the railway strike in Rhodesia.

Mr. Black carried three government mail bags to Bulawayo, in Southern Rhodesia, where he halted his plane after a four-hour hop from Livingstone. He said that he brought out hundreds of private letters in addition to official mail and that many travelers, marooned at Livingstone for three weeks, had tried to obtain passage with him in his machine.

At Bulawayo, which he left at noon, hundreds of townspeople cheered his arrival, and he was also met by the personnel of some royal air force machines that are engaged in a Cairo-to-Capetown flight. Mr. Black made the jump from Bulawayo to this city in four hours.

in several places. While Lindbergh and Anne were in Cuernavaca early this week they drove without escort over territory near where the train assault occurred.

Numerous holdups and raids have occurred in recent years on the Mexico City-Cuernavaca highway, and one American tourist, Jacob Rosenthal, was killed on it about a year ago. It is a 40-mile stretch of dirt road leading up over the mountain ridge encircling the Valley of Mexico and down into the tropical valley to the south, where Cuernavaca is situated.

The road is always patrolled by troops and the federal government is always eager to assign a special escort to any distinguished traveler who will accept it. Such escorts have generally accompanied Ambassador Morrow as he went back and forth between his homes, but recently he has made the journey without this protection.

SALARY PROVISIONS DROPPED BY CONFEREES IN CONGRESS

ficials anywhere from $1,500 a year to $2,500 a year, and the clerks receiving around $1,100 or $1,200 or $1,500 were given $120 a year increase, sometimes only $60 a year.

New Legislation Sought.

"This Congress was importuned to pass corrective legislation and the gentleman from New Jersey, the chairman of the Civil Service committee, Mr. Lehlbach, introduced a very splendid bill, known as the Lehlbach bill.

"In the first place the Lehlbach bill undertook to call upon the personnel classification board to reallocate those higher paid salaries, and to take out of the pockets of those officials who had appropriated the fund illegally, unlawfully and immorally to their own salaries, and reallocate it and give the lower paid employes an increase. That was a righteous provision and the House incorporated that provision in the deficiency appropriation bill when we passed it the other day.

Other Raises Sought.

"In the next place the gentleman from New Jersey incorporated in his bill certain provisions which would have insured additional raises in salaries for the lower paid employes. But again the executive branch of the Government stepped in and showed its hand, and the gentleman from New Jersey reintroduced his bill. And when the new bill was reintroduced he cut out all reference to a reduction of the higher paid employes and the ultimatum came down from the other end of Pennsylvania avenue that there would be no pay legislation if Congress undertook to reduce the salaries of any of the higher paid employes. The House of Representatives, doing in this instance just as it has done in the instance of the retirement legislation, hauls down the flag and abdicates in favor of the Chief Executive of the Nation. There will be no legislation this session in the interest of the lower paid Federal employes.

Offers No Criticism.

"What has happened in this bill? In the deficiency appropriation bill the House has incorporated a provision demanding that these higher paid employes disgorge; that they give up these salaries that they have unlawfully appropriated to themselves, and that this money be parceled out to the lower paid employes. The Senate at the other end of the Capitol incorporated a provision that would have given a raise to the lower paid employes. I do not criticise our conferees. I am sure that they had a tremendous task to perform, and there were many important and necessary items in this bill that could not be prejudiced. However, the conferees on the part of the Senate and House got into a room and had a boxing match, and the House kicked out the Senate provisions and the Senate kicked out the House provision.

"And now we come down to the end and the gavel falls on the 4th of March with the same confusion and chaos in the ranks of the Government employes that existed a year ago. It will go on doing that until the House of Representatives stops long enough in the earlier days of one of its sessions to give sane, careful consideration to this great problem. And what must we do?

"We must have a complete survey of the whole Federal payroll and take the time to sit down and work it out, and stop legislating for groups and classes. We raise this group and the next group comes in for a raise, and then another grade comes in for a raise.

Everybody Guessing.

"Everybody has guessed about it, and Congress has been guessing about it. I know it is too late in the session to pass any kind of constructive legislation on this point. My only thought in taking your time tonight when you are busy and want to get to other affairs, is to register a protest here in order that when we come back in another legislative session we may give to this matter of readjusting Federal salaries careful consideration."

Chairman Wood said that the House conferees had found the proposal to cut out the pay-reduction provision an "impossible" one. Some of the higher-paid employes, he declared, had received raises as high as $2,000 and $2,500, while the low-paid employes received only a trifle.

Sees Hope Next Year.

Wood expressed the belief that at the next session a just and equitable salary bill would be reported out by the civil service committee and would be enacted into law.

In a statement issued late last night President Steward, of the Federation of Federal employes, declared that the failure of pay legislation to pass was "due apparently to the fact that some of the leaders in Congress have been more preoccupied in reducing salaries of the employes in the higher grades than in securing for the lower paid employes the portion of the modest increases which Congress intended for them.

Again there has been demonstrated a failure on the part of the heads of both the executive and legislative branches to grasp the importance of personnel legislation, and the National Federation of Federal Employes will apply itself assiduously to the task of securing remedial legislation at the special session of Congress."

Parents—Think It Over

"The Right to Punish Crime Carries With It the Responsibility of Moral Training."—Daniel Webster.

Sorrow and shame stalk the parents who neglect this responsibility. Children, taught none of the tenets of religion, grow up in moral and spiritual poverty.

Nine out of ten juvenile criminals, brought before a Court of Law, have no religious training whatsoever. Statistics prove this statement.

The value of religious training or moral education can not be overemphasized. It makes for the effective building of human character. In combating the spread of vice and crime there is no more effective agency.

Judges who have dealt with many thousands of boys and girls have reached the conclusion that weakness of character is at the bottom of most of our social troubles. By all means let us engage in the most important task of building human character.

The church is the one organization pledged to morality and spirituality. Regular attendance upon Sunday School or Mass, or at Synagogue or Temple, during the period of character formation would cause the criminal courts and jails to close.

If your children are growing today without the influence of some religious training, what will become of them and their children? Will they be respected citizens or criminals?

Beneficiary Under Will Shuns Administration

An estate valued at more than $100,000 was left by Sallie P. Hill, who died February 1, according to a petition for probate of her will filed yesterday in the District Supreme Court by her aunt, Annie C. Smith. The estate consisted of cash and securities valued at $95,000 and a half interest in coal fields at Georges Creek, Md., valued at $6,000.

The aunt, who is the sole heir, renounced the office of executrix and petitioned the court to appoint Charles M. Jones as administrator.

HARRY LEHRMAN HAS TRIANGLES BY THE SCORE

While a "triangle" is usually the basis of motion picture stories, "New Year's Eve," the latest Fox feature, has the distinction of embodying two triangles.

One of these is inherent in the plot, in this case represented by the struggle of a girl torn between poverty and ambition. The other figure, however, might be called an entertainment triangle, as its three sides are composed of drama, comedy and love interest. Practically every successful picture has an abundance of each of these qualities, according to Henry Lehrman, the director.

"Pictures, to attract favorable attention from the majority, must have a diversity of interests," says Lehrman. "Six or eight reels of undiluted drama, or undiluted love interest, would bore a group of spectators to death. Even feature-length comedies must have plenty of dramatic action to keep them interesting.

"This is the reason why some noted works of fiction have failed to score when transferred to the screen: producers, in adhering too closely to the single mood of the story, perhaps have made an artistic success, but have neglected to satisfy the public demand for widely varied emotions."

In making "New Year's Eve," Lehrman has carefully followed his own principle. The story is of a tenement Cinderella, her adventures in obtaining a hundred dollar bill and in recovering it after it has been stolen from her. "New Year's Eve" is an engaging combination of excitement, humor and romance. It opens at the Fox today with Mary Astor and Charles Morton in the leading roles.

BARRIE STORY PICTURED FOR THE COLUMBIA

The inaugural week program at Loew's Columbia has as the outstanding attraction the much-heralded all-talking picture produced by Paramount, "The Doctor's Secret." In the cast the following well-known players are featured: Ruth Chatterton, H. B. Warner, John Loder and Robert Edeson.

The picture was adapted from the famous stage play by Sir James M. Barrie, "Half an Hour." The story is one of London high society, of a wealthy, self-made man who regards his bought-and-paid-for wife with no little contempt. The narrative has to do with her plans to find happiness with "the other man" and what takes place when carefully laid plans go wrong. One of the outstanding merits of the picture is the perfect reproduction of the voices.

Briefly, the wife decides to run away with her real lover. She goes to his apartment a short time before he is to sail for Egypt. He goes out to buy her clothes and is brought back dead, the victim of an automobile accident. She tells the doctor who brings him in about herself, but does not reveal her name. That evening after she has returned home and tried in vain to recover the note she had left for her husband she is surprised to find the doctor the guest of her husband.

Jack Pepper, acting as master of ceremonies, introduces Frances White, the Ponce Sisters, the Reynolds Sisters and Joseph Regan in a Metro-Movietone revue. Another Movietone act produced by Metro features Jan Garber and his band.

GERMAN VIEWS OF WORLD WAR

"Behind the German Lines," a UFA production ground out by the cameras whose tripods stood in the grime and gore of the great war begins its second week at the Little Theater today.

This is the first opportunity for the world to see the fight of the vanquished. Every nation had its big parade, and now the Germans are telling their story. The film is not a conglomeration of shots taken from time to time, but a complete story taken by German soldiers, most of whom were killed.

In addition there are added subjects never shown on the screen before.

Opening Hours.

Today and Monday, March 2 and 4, respectively, the Metropolitan and Earle Theaters will throw open their doors to the public at 9 a. m., in order to present one complete extra morning performance for the benefit of inaugural visitors

A PICTURE FOR ALL HUMANITY

LURID LOVE IS THEME OF THIS GILBERT PLAY

John Gilbert, supported by Ernest Torrence and Mary Nolan in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer synchronized production, "Desert Nights," is the current screen attraction at Loew's Palace.

The story is one of love and revenge in the primitive wastes of a vast and torrid African desert, in which Gilbert is the dominating figure, first as a prisoner and then as the savior of the girl and her bogus father, who are responsible for his and their plight. The daring gem robbery is one of the most sensational thrills of the production which is all pitched in a highly dramatic key.

The grimness of a dirty diamond mine, manned by hundreds of black-skinned natives, and the dazzling whiteness of miles of sand dunes form a spectacular background for the picture of love and hate. Gilbert is taken along with the stolen gems into the desert. After a series of events only three remain of the original party—Gilbert, Torrence, the villain, and Mary Nolan, the girl. When they come to an oasis the thief escapes with what he believes are the gems, when in reality all he has is a handful of pebbles.

On the stage Wesley Eddy and the Palace Syncopators are seen in Charles A. Niggemeyer's "Carnival Cocktail," in which are presented Frances Wills, Val and Marion Vestoff, Charles March, Joe Besser, Ethel Dallon and the Foster Girls.

BARTHELMESS A REVELATION IN AUDIBLE DRAMA

Richard Barthelmess puls sound, music and talking!

This is the treat awaiting motion picture fans when they see Barthelmess in his first Vitaphone talking picture, "Weary River," which is the major screen offering at the Metropolitan beginning today.

"Weary River" is a spectacularly modern story in which underworld life is combined with the radio. It is based on a short story by Courtney Riley Cooper and was adapted to the screen by Bradley King. It relates the story of a singing convict whose voice over the radio won him a parole and the love of a girl.

For the second time Betty Compson appears as Barthelmess' leading woman, having been last seen in the feminine lead in "Scarlet Seas." Frank Lloyd, whose "Sea Hawk" made screen history, directed "Weary River."

A special midnight performance will be given beginning at 12:01 Monday morning—otherwise Sunday night.

COLOR, SOUND AND DRAMA IN NEW DIX FILM

A new chapter has been written in the history of the motion picture. A new wonder has been revealed. "Redskin," the new Richard Dix epic of the West, which is the major screen offering at the Earle Theater this week and will be given a special midnight performance Sunday, marks an amazing step forward.

Beautiful scenic backgrounds are revealed in all their true color and beauty. The hills and valleys of the Indian country are reproduced for the screen just as the eye sees them in nature. And the powerful gripping story, true to Indian traditions and customs, unfolds in this native setting.

A master cast enacts this drama, led by Richard Dix, who made such a tremendous success of his picturization of "The Vanishing American," and now is said to record a new masterpiece worthy to place with his previous enduring epic.

The power and majesty of music and the cleverly reproduced sound effects increase the realism of the picture. Here, indeed, sound can be measured for its true worth and the whole combination of color, sound and story makes an emotion-stirring picture which will not soon be forgotten.

A STUPENDOUS SPECTACLE AT AVENUE HOUSE

The story to be depicted is from the dawn of creation down through the ages to the signing of the peace treaty in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles. The picture production is an education, portraying the high spots of history from the beginning of mankind to the present day, showing those great historical episodes from the beautiful scenes in the Garden of Eden, Noah and the Ark, the Hebrew race in slavery to the Egyptians, and life of Moses, the Roman Empire, its rule of the world; the Life of Christ teaching the brotherhood of man, and the Crucifixion of Christ; Columbus and his men sailing westward, discovering a new continent, to the historic ride of Paul Revere, the signing of the Declaration of Independence, with all the historical personages; the life and activities of Abraham Lincoln, and episodes of the World War.

"The Birth of a Race" is now playing at the President Theater, with showings daily at 1, 3, 5, 7 and 9 p. m. "The Birth of a Race" is a photoplay staged on a stupendous scale.

Uniform Examinations Called Safety Guarantee by Traffic Body.

FATALITIES ON DECREASE

By A. W. KOEHLER
(Secretary National Conference on Street and Highway Safety).

(The following is the sixth of a series of special articles dealing with a Nation-wide effort to promote traffic safety and reduce the chaos which has been produced by lack of uniform and scientific laws governing the operation of motor vehicles.)

The American people take a warranted pride in the mass production of automobiles which has made that industrial colossus one of the wonders of the modern world. As a Nation the United States may well be called completely motor-minded and the material benefits which have accrued to all sorts and conditions of men, women and children are fully apparent. The splendor of this achievement is not duplicated, however, when even a cursory survey is made of general traffic facilities and provisions for the training and control of perhaps 50,000,000 who drive motor vehicles.

It was this situation which brought into being the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety. The protection of life was its primary object. Its secondary goal was reduction of the huge annual economic loss resulting from inadequate regulation and facilities for the use of automobiles. Uniformity in State laws and municipal ordinance was recognized as the only hope of a satisfactory solution of the problem.

The objective of the conference to aid States and cities in rendering their laws uniform by making them conform with the most enlightened thought on this vital subject through adoption of the fundamental principles of the uniform code and model ordinance is far from accomplished. Enough has been accomplished, however, to prove the soundness of its proposals.

Traffic fatalities were increasing annually at an appalling rate when the national conference was organized in 1924, and while there are reasons for real encouragement in the fact that the annual increase in automobile fatalities now is smaller both in percentage and in actual numbers than five years ago, certainly these changes do not justify any lessening of effort. Rather, they are a challenge for even more intensive labor to urge all States and cities to adopt effective traffic control through uniform laws. Figures already available prove what can be done.

Three groups of States illustrate in striking fashion the value of modern vehicle legislation and administration. The North Atlantic States, from Maine to Maryland, showed an increase of 76 per cent in automobile fatalities from 1920 to 1927. The Middle Western States, from Ohio to Nebraska, omitting two for which statistics are not available, show an increase of 134 per cent during the same period. The Southern States, from Virginia to Louisiana, omitting three for which figures are not available, show an increase of 259 per cent.

The smaller accident increase in the Northeastern States exists in the face of a 176 per cent increase in motor vehicle registration, as compared with 137 per cent registration increase in the Middle West. In the South, the registration increase was 210 per cent against an accident increase of 259 per cent.

The respective conditions in these groups of States are eloquent expressions of what scientific traffic control can achieve. The Northeastern States, having had to grapple with the probem over a longer period, have gone furthest in motor vehicle legislation. While their laws still lack uniformity in important respects, in general they embrace a large part of what has been deemed essential and has been incorporated in the uniform vehicle code. All save one or two of the Northeastern States have thoroughly organized motor vehicle departments and all but one or two have mandatory examinations of applicants as a prerequisite to the granting of drivers' licenses.

The States of the Middle West, also having numerous large cities and rapidly growing traffic, likewise have achieved some progress in vehicle legislation. A number of them have not yet seen the value of fully organized and centralized administration of the motor vehicle law and none of them has thus far established a drivers' licensing system with examination as a mandatory requirement. In general this group may be said to be intermediate between the Northeastern and Southern groups in the development of motor vehicle control and also intermediate in regard to the accident rate.

The Southern group in general, having fewer large cities, fewer good roads and less severe traffic conditions, has made less progress in motor vehicle regulation than either of the other groups and the result shows in the comparative accident records.

It is the settled opinion of the National Conference that the licensing of new drivers only after examination as to their fitness is the most important provision of the uniform code. It is not claimed that examinations will eliminate all unsafe drivers. It is fully recognized that some of the most competent drivers are dangerous, using their skill to trifle with the rights and safety of others.

This does not alter the fact, however, as the records of some Eastern motor vehicle commissioners show, that as high as 25 per cent of the candidates for licenses fail to pass upon the first examination and that on subsequent examinations all save 2 or 3 per cent of these meet the requirements.

This is held to indicate clearly that many candidates first come up for examination when they are incompetent either because of inexperience or lack of knowledge of traffic regulations and would therefore be unsafe on the highways at that time. Subsequently they practice driving and learn the regulations in order to qualify. The fact that every new driver is required to learn the rules and demonstrate that he knows the fundamentals of safe driving is a source of real protection to the public.

The proof of this has been established by the National Safety Council, which ascertained that the automobile fatality rates in nine States having drivers' license laws with examination of new drivers, enforced by a centralized State department, average more than 20 per cent lower, since the passage of such laws, than would have been anticipated on the basis of the prior experience of the same States and the experience of the nonlicenses-law States over the same period.

6,000,000-Share Day Marks the Preinaugural Bull Movement.

RAILS TAKE LEADERSHIP

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—The bull party brought out the same sort of stock market fireworks today for the inauguration of President-elect Hoover Monday that they used to celebrate his election last November. The market experienced another of the 6,000,000-share days which were first brought forth after the election, and dozens of stocks bid up from 5 to 25 points, and the Associated Press index of 50 industrials set a new high record.

The buying was of impressive character, much of it in blocks of 5,000 to 35,000 shares, indicating that powerful interests were behind the movement. Brokers' wires from all parts of the country were kept hot with orders, particularly those from Palm Beach, whence several prominent bulls were said to be operating. The ticker fell about half an hour behind the market and ran for 25 minutes after the close.

Call money held at 8 per cent all day, and the calling of loans was nominal. Failure of the rate to go higher over the month end was a pleasant surprise and stimulated the buying movement, although bankers were inclined to look for continuance of abnormally tight money for several weeks.

Dallas Bank Raises Rate.

It was announced after the close of the market that the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank had raised its rate from 4½ to 5 per cent, placing it on a level with the Eastern banks, and leaving only Minneapolis, Kansas City and San Francisco on the 4½ per cent basis. Although it has been considered probable that the bringing of the 4 per cent rates up to 5 would precede an increase to 5½ at New York, Wall street was not inclined to interpret the Dallas action as foreshadowing any immediate change here, at any rate, not until after the Government refinancing due March 15.

Business news continued of bullish nature. The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. announced a $2,000,000,000 expansion program for the next five years. The United Corporation, recently formed by Morgan interests as a utility company, made its first important move with an offer to acquire a one-fourth interest in United Gas Improvement. Export Copper was advanced to 19¼ cents to bring it into line with the new domestic price. The weekly trade and business reviews were cheerful, and earnings reports for 1928 continued to reflect the marked improvement made last year.

Express Shares Buoyant.

Express shares again displayed extraordinary buoyancy, Adams moving up 25 points to 565, after its 60-point jump of yesterday. U. S. Steel recorded a new high fer all time at 193¾, but closed at 192¾.

Coppers retained their leadership until afternoon, when they began to slip in profit taking, and heavy buying of the rails set in. There was considerable realising toward the close. Radio, (old) which rose 16½ points to 413½, only 6½ points from its peak, fell back to 405.

Anaconda, for the second successive day, jumped more than 7 points, carrying it to 158, which is more than 100 points above its 1928 low. It lost half its gain for the day, however, and Greene Cananea, after mounting 3 points, to a new top at 190, fell back 5.

Rails Are Stimulated.

In the rails, which were stimulated by merger developments and an increase of about 40 per cent in January net operating revenues, St. Louis Southwestern, Pere Marquette, Canadian Pacific New York Central and Union Pacific mounted 5 to 8 points. Missouri Pacific, which is seeking to unify its system as New York Central has done, though it has been considered probable made a new high for the year at 83½, and Baltimore & Ohio made a new top at 131¾.

Advance Rumely, American Bosch Magneto, Commonwealth Power, Patino Mines, Wright Aero, A. M. Byers, Case Threshing, Motion Picture Capital, Rossia Insurance, were among issues making extreme gains of 5 to 15 points. Bethlehem and Republic Steels followed U. S. Steel into new high ground in the motors, Chrysler sold up over 8 points. Yellow Truck touched a new high for the year at 45, in buying said to have come from the Fisher interests.

The commodities were generally firm. Wheat improved on better returns from Liverpool, and corn was firm on short covering and light offerings. Cotton closed steady.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, with sterling steady.

SPECULATIVE WAVE LIFTS BOND PRICES

Anaconda 7s Soar to 237; Keenest Demand Shown by Convertibles.

FEDERAL LIST IS FIRMER

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—A backwash of the bullish demonstration in the stocks today carried upward the speculative issues on the bond market. There was considerable irregularity, however, in the movements of issues without conversion rights, and more than a dozen of these securities slumped to new lows. Public utilities were the only group to display weakness.

The bulk of the trading was in the convertibles. Anaconda Copper 7s kept well out in front, with an extreme gain of 10 points, establishing a new high price for all time at 237. Profit taking in the closing dealings carried them back to 233½, for a net gain of 4⅜ points on the day. Buying totaling more than $400,000 sent Alleghany Corporation 5s up 2 points, to 104. American International 5½s advanced fractionally.

Another favorite, International Telephone 4½s, reached 119, 1 point under its record figure, and closed at 118. Porto Rican-American Tobacco 6s, convertible into Congress Cigar common, gained a point. Public Service of New Jersey convertible 4½s at one time were up to 200, but closed at 199, for a net gain of 6½ and 7 points under its recent high price.

In the stronger industrial list Tennessee Copper & Chemical extended its advance 2 points, to 112, reflecting the rises in copper prices. Wickwire Steel 7s were strong, advancing more than a point, but United States Steel sinking fund 5s sold fractionally lower. Consolidation Coal of Maryland 5s were a weak spot, slumping more than a point to a new low.

Atchison 4½s, a recent newcomer to the board, shot up more than 2 points to a record high at 118. St. Paul adjustment 5s were another strong issue, advancing fractionally on a total turnover of $389,000. Several of the rails sagged to new lows, including New Haven collateral 6s and refunding 4½s. Losses, however, were mostly small. Tractions were strong. Market Street Railway 7s advancing 2⅜ points.

Weakness in the Utilities was displayed by Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s B, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s and New York Telephone general 4½s, the latter touching a new low at 99¼. Losses were mostly fractional. Portland Electric 6s advanced more than a point.

United States Government obligations displayed a firmer tone.

Advances of more than 3 points in the Associated Gas & Electric issues imparted a firmer tone to the curb bonds.

GEORGETOWN MAKES BID FOR TRACK TITLE TONIGHT

Ruel Coaching Weaver on Control

Big Hurler Encounters Difficulty in Keeping Pitches Low.

Nats in Hard Workout Despite Rain; Speed Is Still Taboo.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

TAMPA, Fla., March 1.—It was rainy and cold at Plant Field this morning, but these conditions did not dampen the enthusiasm of Manager Walter Johnson and his Washington baseball athletes. On the other hand, the boys were forced to "step on it" in order to derive any benefit from the drill, and this they did with a will.

This especially applies to Jim Weaver, the man mountain from Kentucky, who donned the detested rubber shirt and took no less than eight laps around the half-mile running track at intervals. This mastodon, incidentally, is coming in for considerable attention because of his great speed and his height, which permits him to make his delivery from over the heads of the batters.

Between the time that he was doing a little work on his own account, Catcher Muddy Ruel was coaching the big fellow. Weaver's main trouble has been in getting the ball over the plate around the knees of opposing hitters, and at Ruel's direction he practiced throwing at Catcher Al Bool's feet, giving the latter quite an exciting morning.

Hadley, Liska, Campbell, Brown Sneak Over Fast Ones.

Although speed is still tabooed at the Nats' camp, some of the hurlers, notably Bump Hadley, Ad Liska, Guy Cantrell and Lloyd Brown, are sneaking over occasional fast ones. This quartet appears to be slightly further advanced than the others.

Manager Johnson and Trainer Mike Martin have been fairly successful in keeping the boys under wraps, however, although they admit that they expect to have some real trouble in this respect when the flingers take the mound next week to give the squad between now and Monday hitting practice. With a batter facing them and a catcher behind the plate the boys will try an occasional fast one or curve, being unable to resist the temptation.

As the grape-fruit league season here opens the following Sunday, when the Tampa Krewe will be met, a certain amount of advancement will be necessary if the Nats hope to come out on top, so the chances are that Johnson will not complain if the rookie slingers do not try to step out at too fast a clip.

Douglas, Giant Right-Hander, Trying Out With Club.

Unless the Tampa weather man prevents the Nationals from getting a good workout tomorrow, there will be no practice session on Sunday, Johnson believing that a day's rest will do the boys good after their first rather strenuous workout. Should tomorrow's drill be interfered with, however, then a Sabbath workout will be scheduled. Kenneth Douglas, a right-handed pitcher who played with the Sanford Team, of the defunct Florida State

GLICKHALTED IN SECOND BY M'LARNIN

New Yorker Floored Twice Before K. O. by Coast Fighter.

NEW YORK, March 1 (A.P.).—Jimmy McLarnin, the Los Angeles boy with the baby face and a punch in either hand, came back to Madison Square Garden tonight and knocked out tough Joe Glick, the Williamsburg tailor, in the second round of a ten-round match.

Grown beyond the lightweight class in which he was an outstanding figure last summer, McLarnin served notice on the welterweights that he would have to be reckoned with by flooring Glick twice and then knocking him out after only a minute and 37 seconds of fighting in the second round.

Glick, one of the roughest and

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, March 1.—American League baseball magnates are said to have come to the conclusion that the annual "most valuable player" award is a joke, thereby making opinion on the subject virtually unanimous. Others have dismissed the selections with an equine snicker because of the unjudicial attitude of some members of the nominating committee, which is made up of baseball writers. Prejudice and partiality, to say the least, have been known to dictate individual judgments.

But it is not for this reason that the magnates have decided that the plan is just a lot of hoole, anyway, nor yet because they must pay the player thus honored $1,000. They find that the players, themselves, are taking seriously a gesture primarily intended to produce publicity.

Mickey Cochrane, winner of the 1928 award, had the ill grace and immodesty to drag the matter into his salary negotiations for 1929. Mr. Cochrane had the quaint notion that if the American League officially recognized him as its most valuable player, the Philadelphia club, his employer, also should so recognize him, the recognition taking the form of a substantial increase in salary.

Macks Consented to Raise; Writers May Keep It Up.

Mr. Cachrane is, in truth, a valuable chattel, so valuable, in fact, that it is hardly feasible to punish his recalcitrance by exile to Newark, trade to the Braves or another of the means usually employed to squelch players of his ilk. The Athletics, swearing they would ne'er consent to a raise, consented, but Connie Mack and his brother magnates are determined never again to place such a weapon in a player's hand. They seem to have given no thought to the fact that the Baseball Writers Association, if it is so minded, can go right on picking the most valuable player. That it would continue to garnish the selection with a $1,000 cash award seems improbable, not to say fantastic, but money is not everything to more than 99 per cent of the players. A few years ago Babe Ruth, offered his choice between a cash gift and a diploma, chose the diploma, to the amazement of most beholders, including the magnates.

Georgetown Carries Lot of Eggs In One Basket; Has Stars

Georgetown will be carrying a lot of eggs in one basket when it goes after the intercollegiate indoor track and field championship in the 102d Engineers' Armory tomorrow night, but both the eggs and the basket are of superior quality. Leo Sexton, the Hilltoppers' great all-around star, will tote the basket of eggs. He is entered in four events and is expected to score more than ten points. Practice efforts have indicated that he can better existing records for three of them, the 35-pound, the high jump and the shot put, if he is in top form.

Sexton is also entered in the broad jump, and on past performances has a good chance to win that event, too. But even if Sexton's performances fall short of expectations, Georgetown has provided him with an excellent supporting cast that is likely to pull the team through. Dave Adelman, the titleholder, in the shot put; Kjelstrom, Olympic hurdler, in the timber event; Wildermuth, in the sprint, and two good relay teams will be out helping Sexton to gather points.

Sharkey Exhibits Interest in Jim Malone's Industry.

Jimmy Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, is one of the few prominent pugilists to whom the ring is a sideline to regular employment. Every day at 7 a. m., when he is not in intensive training, Maloney may be found operating a gasoline pump. He does not own the station, either, being merely a wage slave. He has plenty of money and lives well, but apparently likes to work. His industry amazes fellow Bostonians, including his bitter enemy, Squire Sharkey. The Squire's amazement takes the form of wonder how Maloney ever was able to learn how to operate the pump. Great pals, those two.

JIM MALONEY OUTPOINTS HEENEY

Boston Heavyweight Batters Australian in Every Round.

BOSTON GARDEN, March 1 (U.P.).—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, who has been staging a surprising comeback in recent months, won a ten-round decision over Tom Heeney, the New Zealander who fought Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship, tonight.

It was the first time Heeney had fought since he was defeated by Tunney at the Yankee Stadium in New York last summer, and he fought a game but losing fight against the Bostonian. Heeney was bleeding badly from the eye and the mouth as the fight ended.

Maloney fought a vigorous fight before a crowd of 18,000, which cheered him loudly as he was given the decision.

Heeney Pummels Foe Around Ring in First Round.

Heeney started strong. The short arms of the rock from down under pummeled Maloney around the ring, and the New Zealander seemed to be going after a victory similar to the one over Maloney more than a year ago, when he scored a knockout in the first round.

Beginning with the third round, Maloney started taking an advantage, using a looping right and a hard, straight left to batter Heeney. They fought at a furious pace in these early rounds, but were forced to slow down some at the middle of the bout.

In the sixth round Maloney staggered the squat New Zealander with a right, and in the seventh started Heeney's mouth to bleeding with a series of hard rights. By the ninth round Heeney's face was badly bruised and Maloney kept swinging to the eye.

The tenth found Heeney fairly well spent and Maloney doing most of the leading, scoring repeatedly with the right.

WHITEMAN TO NEW CLUB.

ATLANTA, March 1.—Maryland University bowed its way out of the Southern Conference basket ball tournament this afternoon, losing to Mississippi, 1928 conference champions, in the first game of the day. The score was 37 to 35.

"Old Miss" took too big a lead at the half and had enough wind left to stop a determined drive by the Old Liners in the second half. The score at the half was 24 to 14 in favor of the Oxford Team.

Maryland outtopped the Mississippians probably 2 inches to the man, but the Old Liners couldn't ring the basket with the accuracy of Selby and Mabry.

Radice and Allen, of Maryland, began to click their long tosses shortly after the start of the second period, and Mississippi soon found itself on the long end of a 34-to-32 score.

Allen Sinks Four Long Shots During Sensational Rally.

Allen sank four long shots and Radice two in this period. Evans put in a snowbird and Dean dropped one through the loop in as pretty a rally as any staged in Atlanta this year.

The Old Liners couldn't quite put over the finishing punch, however, and with five minutes to play, Mississippi scored a free shot and field goal to take a 5-point lead. Both teams battled back and forth over the floor and Allen finally put in one from near the center. Then he made a free toss, but the bell cut off further scoring.

Allen was easily the best player on the court. He moved easily, despite his weight, and his goal shooting nearly put Mississippi out of the race in the first game.

Werber, a brilliant running guard, and Croson, sharpshooting center, pulled Duke to the fore to beat Alabama, 38 to 32, in an uphill fight. The Tide held a 17 to 12 lead at the half, with Campbell leading the scoring. Werber's guarding checked the Crimsons in the second half, while Croson broke through the Tide defense to score points that sent the Blue Devils to the fore. Croson led the scoring with six field goals for 12 points, but was hard pressed by the Tide forward, Campbell, who added a foul goal to five field goals for 11 points.

Penn Can Clinch Title By Beating Dartmouth

Philadelphia, March 1 (United Press).—The University of Pennsylvania basket ball team can clinch the Eastern Intercollegiate League championship if it defeats Dartmouth at Hanover Saturday night. The Green is the only team in the league with a mathematical chance to tie Penn for the title.

Penn suffered its first defeat in twenty games against Eastern opponents early this week when Columbia bottled up Capt. Schaaf, leading scorer of the league, and put over a victory.

TREMONTS IN ACTION.

Tremonts play the St. Martins tomorrow night in the St. Martin's Gymnasium at 3 o'clock. The Tremonts want games with teams in the senior or unlimited class having gymnasiums. Pete Ciango can be reached at Columbia 9214-W.

Amateurs Are Paid, A. A. U. Official Knows, Says Barbuti

NEW YORK, March 1 (A.P.).—Replying to a telegram notifying him of his suspension by the Amateur Athletic Union, Ray Barbuti, Olympic 400-meter champion, declared in a letter today that he "did say, and I repeat now, that certain athletes received more than their expenses, and that this is known to a certain A. A. U. official."

In his letter, addressed to John J. Deignan, chairman of the Metropolitan A. A. U. registration committee, Barbuti said:

"With but few exceptions every amateur athletic union official I have met has become friendly to me and I to him, and at no time did I say that 'I'm through with that gang of four flushers forever!' I did not say that 'I and other athletes have been lining the pockets of the A. A. U. and its affiliated clubs for years.' I did not deride the A. A. U. as an amateur organization nor in any other way.

Official Aware Athletes Received More Than Expenses, He Says.

"I did say, and I repeat now, that it was unfair for the A. A. U. to place me under suspension for nonappearance in the N. Y. A. C. games when I never signed an entry blank for those games. I did say, and I repeat now, that certain athletes received more than their expenses and this is known to a certain A. A. U. official. It is also known to many colleges and club coaches and educators, and to many newspaper men. I am not a talebearer and will make no affidavits involving any one else in trouble. The A. A. U. should be well able to clean its own house, without taking my time from a business which I am striving to build up less than a year out of college.

"I did say and I repeat that the A. A. U. and its clubs do not get my business for me, and I was annoyed, and I am now, because of the trouble and inconvenience imposed upon me to come to A. A. U. headquarters to be investigated when entirely innocent of any wrongdoing.

Scores Long Delay of A. A. U. In Investigating Cases.

"For your information several of the athletes whom you have suspended because they did not come to the A. A. U. headquarters to answer charges were present and I saw them there. The long delay of your committee in getting to their cases caused them to leave for supper and this is why they were absent when you called for them. Several of these men had been working all day and were vouchsafed no explanation as to when their cases might be called. So they went out to eat.

"If there are any other points in the article referred to about which you wish information please let me know."

SHARKEYS HERE EN ROUTE NORTH

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sharkey viewed Washington while changing trains in the city for a few moments yesterday on their way to Boston from Miami Beach, where the former sailor won the decision over Young Stribling. Sharkey's puffed cheeks bore evidence of the battle. He obliged the photographers with ill grace in shining contrast to the good humor of Mrs. Sharkey.

G. U. Salvages 1 Bout of 7 With Talented Penn Staters

THE luckless Georgetown Boxing Team met none other than the Intercollegiate Champion Penn State Team last night and not inconsistent with their luck, the Hilltoppers found the Lion pugilists champions in fact as well as name. As a consequence a capacity audience of 1,200 saw Georgetown defeated in its final local appearance of the season by a score of six bouts to one.

Today Coach Leo Houck, the old-time professional who instructs the boys from State College, Pa., will take his proteges to Annapolis for an attempt to snap Navy's nine-year dual meet-winning streak. Navy will find the Lions in fine condition, for it was beyond the powers of the Georgetown young men to damage them to an appreciable extent.

Only Emmett Hagerty, of the Georgetown array, left the ring last night with a victory. He tagged the chin of Al Theis often and hard enough to win the judges' favor without dispute. Even Theis will offer his Navy foe a strong argument, however, as he seemed to recover quickly from Hagerty's attack.

Towel Tossed in For Monson In Last Round of Fight.

Allie Wolff, Penn State's intercollegiate champion middleweight, disappointed those who went out to watch his knockout punches. Mario Pozzo, of Georgetown, made an elusive target for those blows that usually have found home and victory. The decision was awarded Wolff, keeping his record clean, but he failed to show the prowess of a champion and a kayo artist.

Jack Tierney, of the Hilltop, was on even terms for three rounds with Bill Struble in the 175-pound bout, but in the extra round absorbed a two-fisted attack to the head which completely dissipated his chances of winning. Referee Miller awarded the bout to the Lion boxer on a technical knockout 10 seconds before time expired.

Andrew Brennan, applying the manly art in the ring for the first time, substituting for Charley Fish, whose hand was injured, was defeated by a technical knockout by Jack Davis, of Penn State, in the second round of a bout that was one-sided from the start.

Wolff Outpoints Posso But Fails to Show Punch.

A similar fate was Weldon Monson's. The former star Georgetown football tackle was hopelessly outclassed by Marty McAndrews, the towel being tossed in from the G. U. corner in the third round.

In the opening 115-pound bout, the long left jab of Julius Epstein accounted for the defeat of the Hilltop bantamweight, Joe Davis. Epstein's southpaw pokes seldom failed to reach the face of the Georgetown lad.

The summaries:

115 pounds—Epstein (P. S.) defeated Davis (G.); decision; three rounds.
125 pounds—Hagerty (G.) defeated Theis (P. S.); decision; three rounds.
135 pounds—Won by Penn State on forfeit; Madden (G.) ill.
145 pounds—Davis (P. S.) defeated Brennan (G.); technical knockout in second round.
158 pounds—Wolff (P. S.) defeated Pozzo (G.); decision; three rounds.
175 pounds—Struble (P. S.) defeated Tierney (G.); technical knockout in fourth round.
Unlimited — McAndrews (P. S.) defeated Monson (G.); technical knockout in third round.

St. John's Triumphs, 26-22, Over Central

Taking Central into camp last night, after beating Tech earlier in the week, the St. John's Basketeers feel that the sun has finally shone for them this season. Central, although giving fight throughout last night, was not quite good enough for the Johnnies, who won, 26 to 22, in the St. John's Gymnasium.

Schlegel was the big gun for the Johnnies, delivering with four baskets and four foul shots for 12 points. Quigley played an exceptional floor game as did Hudson, who also had a keen eye for the baskets in the collecting of three baskets and two foul tosses for 8 points. Quigley made but one basket for 2 points.

St. John's started in determined fashion and kept its pace throughout, leading, 16 to 10, at the half. Central kept close always but could not push the needed points over for victory.

Pladner 7-5 Favorite Over Genaro at Paris

Paris, March 1 (United Press).—Emil ("Spider") Pladner, of France, European flyweight champion, was a 7-to-5 favorite tonight to defeat Frankie Genaro, New York Italian, recognized by the National Boxing Association as world's flyweight champion, in their match here tomorrow night. The match is advertised for the world's flyweight championship.

Both fighters rested today, after final workouts yesterday in which Genaro boxed four rounds and Pladner two.

Corporal Izzy Schwartz is recognized as world's flyweight champion by the New York State Athletic Commission. Pladner recently defeated Schwartz in Paris in a nontitle match.

Sharkey Asks Title Of Pennsylvania Body

Philadelphia, March 1 (United Press). The Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission today received a letter from Johnny Buckley, Jack Sharkey's manager, asking that body to recognize the Bostonian world's heavyweight boxing champion.

Chairman Frank Weiner said that in his opinion the Sharkey-Stribling fight was not of a championship nature.

27 Battery Candidates At First Tech Drill

Twenty-seven battery candidates answered the call to baseball at Tech High School by Coach Edwards yesterday. Of this collection only Ensor and Speigel, pitchers; and Sorrell, catcher, are veterans of last year. Edwards hopes to find one or two more pitchers and at least one more catcher to strengthen his team this season.

Hilltop Team Outstanding Contender

Sexton, Adelman and Wildermuth Carry Strong Hopes.

O'Reilly, Ill, at Home; New York U., Penn Are Chief Rivals.

By JACK ESPEY
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

NEW YORK, March 1.—Their high hopes for victory intermingled with sadness over the absence of their coach, John D. O'Reilly, who remained in Washington ill with the grip, the Georgetown University track and field athletes, eighteen strong, arrived here tonight in quest of the intercollegiate indoor championship which will be determined tomorrow night at the 102d Regiment Armory.

In the charge of Father John Murphy, S. J., faculty athletic adviser, the Hilltoppers made their headquarters the McAlpin Hotel. Director of Athletics Lou Little is expected to arrive from Washington early tomorrow morning. Coach O'Reilly had long anticipated with confidence the performance of his pupils in the indoor college classic and he undoubtedly is heartsick over his inability to be with them.

Twenty-seven colleges and universities will send over 400 athletes into competition for the coveted team and individual championships. Close followers of the sport have picked Georgetown, New York University, Pennsylvania, Harvard, Cornell, Holy Cross and Dartmouth as the strongest contenders with a slight edge accorded the first three. Cornell won last year with 21 points, nosing out Georgetown by half a point.

Adelman to Defend His Shot-Put Record at Meet.

Dave Adelman, 250-pound New Yorker, representing Georgetown, will be one of seven defending title holders. Adelman last winter won the shot-put title with a record heave of 48 feet 8 inches. He has bettered that mark in competition already this season, while a teammate, Leo Sexton, also has beaten it.

Adelman, Sexton and Karl Wildermuth, slim-built sprinter who holds the national 60-yard championship, are carrying the weight of Georgetown's hopes. They have been figured to turn in from 10 to 20 points among them, but they will have achieved a magnificent feat if they do this against the caliber of competition they will meet.

Adelman and Sexton will be opposed in the shot put by Barney Berlinger, crack sophomore of Penn; Charles Smith, metropolitan champion of New York University; Lansberg, 1927 shot title holder of Penn; Anderson and Cohen, both point scorers in this event for Cornell, and Morris, formidable entrant for Haverford.

Sexton to Try for Top Honors In High Jump Field.

The same two Hilltoppers will encounter equally strong opposition in the 35-pound weight throw, among their rivals being Worden and Weis, of Cornell, who bagged several important points for the winning Ithaca Team last winter. Steiner and Feist, of Penn, also loom troublesome for the Capital weight tossers.

Besides the shot and 35-pound weight, Sexton will attempt to win the high jump championship from a field which includes Berlinger, Hedges of Princeton; Maynard, Darthmouth's shining star, and Stratton and Newkirk, of Penn. Sexton's best chance lies in the high jump, as he has done 6ft. 4in. in competition previously.

Wildermuth will be out to wrest the 70-yard dash crown from Jimmy Daley, of Holy Cross, who defeated him recently. Art French, Harvard football star, also is rated highly for this event. Wildermuth should collect at least a second place, in the opinion of the experts, despite the fact that lately he has suffered a recurrence of muscle strain which killed his chances to go to Amsterdam with the United States Olympic Team last summer.

The pole vault and the 2-mile run are the only events in which Georgetown has no entry. A record-breaking performance is looked for from Fred Sturdy, of Yale, in the pole vault. Berlinger and Victor Pickard, of Pittsburgh, are being counted in on the point division.

Phil Edwards, celebrated Canadian Olympic contestant, will lead the touted New York University Team. That he will win the 1-mile run is almost a foregone conclusion, while the Violet 2-mile relay team, on which he is anchor man, already has been awarded the title by the forecasters. Jack Montgomery, of Penn, and Bill Cox, of Penn State, promise to furnish the hardest contention in the mile with the lanky negro runner. Georgetown's representative will be Dan Hennessey, who finished sixth last year.

Kjellstrom Is Hilltop's Hope In 70-Yard High Hurdles.

The 70-yard high hurdles likely will see a close finish with Sol Furth, of New York University, and Collier, of Penn, in the front running. Eric

HARRIS OCCUPIED WITH CHANGES IN TIGERS' OUTFIELD

Plans to Use Heilmann at First Base

Rice and Stone Seen as Regulars; Rookie May Play Right.

News From Various Other Major League Training Camps.

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 1 (United Press).—Manager Stanley Harris of the Tigers sent his battery candidates through their paces today and pondered changes in his outfield.

With Harry Heilmann a possibility for first base there is a good chance for Roy Johnson, Pacific Coast leaguer, to make the right-field position, Harris said.

Just now Johnson is reported to be dickering with the San Francisco Club for part of his purchase money, threatening not to report to the Tigers unless he gets it. However, Harris believes Johnson will report Sunday with the rest of the squad.

McCarthy to Give Stephenson Chance at First Base.

Avalon, Catalina Island, Calif., March 1 (United Press).—Manager Joe McCarthy will get his first real chance to look over his Chicago Cubs Saturday when he divides them into two teams for their initial practice games.

Riggs Stephenson, brought in from the outfield to try his hand at the utility first-base job, will work at that position on one of the clubs. Most of the attention will be centered on him because a man must be found to fill in for Charley Grimm in case of accident.

Gabby Hartnett's sore arm and Hack Wilson's ailing thigh were the only bad effects noticed in camp today.

Pipgras and Combs Report to Yanks Ahead of Time.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 1 (U.P.). George Pipgras and Earl Combs, pitcher and center fielder, reported to the New York Yankees today, ahead of schedule. Pipgras started to work but Combs elected to rest until Monday when the remainder of the Yankee regulars will report for duty. Two recruits, Earl Christiansen and Vernon Tucker, infielder and pitcher, also reported. Lazzeri, still bothered by his bad shoulder, worked hard today in an effort to eliminate the handicap.

Batterymen Report at Phillies' Headquarters; Drill Today.

Winterhaven, Fla., March 1 (U.P.).—Twelve battery men reported to Coach Burt Shotton, of the Philadelphia Phillies here today, ready for the first workout of the season which will be held Saturday morning. The new arrivals were met at the train by President William F. Baker, of the club.

Vance Visits Dodgers' Camp; Refuses to Discuss Contract.

Clearwater, Fla., March 1 (U.P.).—Dazzy Vance, star pitcher and a holdout, was a visitor at the camp of the Brooklyn Dodgers here today. Vance refused to discuss his contract but said he had an appointment with Manager Wilbert Robinson at Homosassa, Fla., Saturday. Rain interrupted the morning drill of the Dodgers but they worked out in the afternoon.

Scrubs Win Intraclub Game At Giants' Training Camp.

San Antonio, Tex., March 1 (U.P.).—The Scrubs won another six-inning game here today from the regulars by a score of 5 to 2. The regular line-up included only one substitute, Pat Crawford, Toledo rookie, featured the game with three hits in three times at bat for the Yannigans. Terry, Roush and Gibson are the only members of the squad not in camp.

Only Two Members of Mack's Squad Are Now Missing.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 1 (U.P.).—Only two members of the Philadelphia Athletics were missing from early spring training today when the roster was increased to 34 players by the arrival of William Shores, young pitcher.

The two absentees are Max Bishop, regular second baseman, and George Earnshaw. Bishop is reported to be a holdout, while Earnshaw has been excused from early drills to take the baths at Hot Springs, Ark.

Orlando, Fla., March 1 (U.P.).—Hughey Critz, new captain of the Cincinnati Reds ran through two workouts here today, his first of the season. Rain cut short the second workout of the reds.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

COG AIR.

No, darling, not a hair tonic but a four-legged maverick that yours truly jerked forth from the old pickling vat—last time. Hones-to gawd, bo, here is the sweetest melon of the Miami meeting. Goes in the third spasm and will pay a hatful. My best word is start settling the kale in and shake every last nickle out of the mutts. J. A. 85 TEAMS ENTERED IN SOUTH ATLANTIC TOURNEY

Post Deluged With Late Entries

Managers Storm Post as Lists Are Closed; 10 Girls' Teams.

Number of Competing Clubs May Reach 90 After Check-Up.

THE greatest basket ball tournament in the history of this section of the Nation was assured when a final deluge of entries for the South Atlantic games poured into the Washington Post sports department last night.

Eighty-five teams, 75 in the boys' classes and ten in the girls' division, are entered in the tournament which The Washington Post is staging for the third consecutive year in cooperation with South Atlantic A. A. U officials. Long before midnight, the closing hour of the entries, it was ascertained that last year's record-breaking entry of 71 teams would be exceeded, and with other entries doubtless in the mails the total number of teams to compete may reach 90.

Every Prominent Quintet and Sextet Listed Among Entries.

The Washington Post tomorrow morning will publish the entire list of teams entered and on Monday morning will print the roster of each team. Every prominent quintet or sextet in the city and its suburbs is entered in the tournament, assuring that the winners of the Washington division will gain recognition as the District champions. The Washington winners are to meet the winners of the Baltimore division for the official South Atlantic championships, individual medals and team trophies.

The games will be staged at the spacious George Washington University Gymnasium, which The Washington Post has obtained through the courtesy of the university officials. The tournament will open either on March 9 or March 11 with the definite date pending.

Bulk of Teams Waited Until Final Night to Enter.

As usual, the bulk of the teams waited until the final day to post entries and The Post sports department last night was the mecca for scores of ambitious managers who visualize titles and South Atlantic glory. The strict eligibility rules of the tournament resulted in curbing managers from signing recognized stars who are known to have received money for playing in violation of the A. A. U. code.

The weighing in ceremonies will start next Tuesday at the Boys Club under the supervision of South Atlantic officials. Definite announcement as to the order in which the classes weigh in will be made in The Washington Post tomorrow. Each member of the teams must weigh in under the required class weight limit.

M'LARNIN STOPS GLICK IN SECOND

toughest of the lightweights, had been knocked out only twice before. Bobby Garcia and Honey Boy Finnegan turned the trick when Glick was campaigning as a featherweight three or four years ago.

Tonight, McLarnin, known as right-hand puncher, beat Glick at his own game. The Williamsburg tailor is one of the best left-hook artists in the business, but McLarnin beat him with that weapon even though it was a straight right that finally ended the uneven battle.

Cool and confident, Glick came out of his corner for the first round determined to gain revenge for two decision victories McLarnin holds over him, while McLarnin held both hands high, ready for an opening. Glick, a smile on his face, tore in, shooting left hooks to the body. The round was barely half over when McLarnin smashed Glick cleanly on the chin with a terrific left hook. Still smiling, although he was badly hurt, Glick covered up, but he could not protect himself from the storm of lefts and rights the Los Angeles puncher threw his way.

Glick Goes to Corner Groggy After First Round Drubbing.

Glick went to his corner at the end of the round in bad shape, but the minute's rest period gave him a chance to recuperate.

The first punch of the second round, another hook from McLarnin's left, staggered Glick. Another one to the chin sent him to the floor for the count of nine. As he rose, McLarnin tore into him and drove him to a corner, where another left hook floored the New Yorker.

Outclassed, but game as ever, Glick rose again at the count of nine only to run into another two-fisted barrage that drove him close to McLarnin's corner. Here Jimmy, carefully measuring his man, put all his strength behind a straight right that landed flush on Glick's chin and floored him for the third time.

As the count reached seven, Glick, a bloody spectacle, summoned all his strength, half rose only to fall flat on his back just as the count reached ten and out.

RINALDIS LEAD OPPONENTS.

The Rinaldi Italian-Americans are leading the Northeast Temple Italians by a 25-pin margin as a result of winning in the first block of games of their series last night on the Northeast alleys. The second block will be rolled next Tuesday on the Convention Hall drives.

AMERICAN U. VICTOR OVER C. U., 29-22

Bruce Kessler Stars in Final College Game Here.

THE American University court squad closed its season in a flashy fashion last night when it defeated the Catholic University Quintet, 29 to 22, in the first named club's gymnasium. The victors led all the way but never by a wide margin.

Bruce Kessler, who has cavorted on local courts in high school and college competition for the past seven years, made the best of his farewell game by starring for the winning five. Kessler covered his man in exceptional style and contributed eight of his team's total points.

The American University combination kept the ball in its possession for the most part of the first half but failed to take advantage of its numerous scoring opportunities. Shot after shot was directed toward the Cardinal goal but only a comparatively few trinkled through the net.

GONZAGA FIVE ROUTED BY G. U. PREP

Revenge Gained After 6 Years by Decisive 43-21 Triumph.

GEORGETOWN PREP crowned six years of effort yesterday by beating Gonzaga in a basket ball game. Yesterday at Garrett Park the Brooksmen beat Gonzaga decisively by a 43-to-21 score.

In winning, Georgetown Prep chalked up its fifteenth victory of the season in eighteen starts and registered eighteen baskets to Gonzaga's nine. Seven of eleven foul tosses were made also against Gonzaga's three out of fourteen.

Cameron and Watkins were high scorers for the Georgetowners, both with 13 points. Rehkopf and Heekin also played well. Bussink was the high man for Gonzaga, scoring four baskets and a foul shot for 9 points.

Georgetown Prep led throughout and was in the van, 24 to 11, at the half. Coach Mitchell, of Gonzaga, used many substitutes in an effort to inspire his team's attack, but to no avail.

St. Mary's Celtics Play Skinker Eagles Tonight

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., March 1.—The Old Dominion Boat Club, by defeating the St. Mary's Celtics Basket Ball Team last night, has broken even on the series so far, having one victory and one defeat in the city series. The Celtics and Hoffmans, however, will meet the night of March 1, when a thrilling contest may be looked for. The series is for the city championship, and is all too short, consisting of only nine games, or three for each team.

The Celtics will hook up with the Skinker Brothers Eagles at the armory tomorrow night, this being one of the feature games of their schedule.

Has Five Survivors in Tourney; N. Carolina Second With Four.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., March 1.—At the close of today's flights in the Third Annual Southern Conference Boxing Tournaments boxers from Florida topped the list with five winners. Close on the heels of the Gators was North Carolina with four winners. As Warren, Carolina heavyweight, drew a bye this afternoon the Tarheels will have five men in the semifinals tomorrow afternoon; Virginia, four; Duke, Tulane and Virginia Tech, three each; Clemson and South Carolina, two each, and Georgia, one.

Pattie, of Virginia Tech, former Conference middleweight champion, pulled the unexpected by vanquishing the ace of the Tulane squad, Pizzano, former amateur champion, after four fast rounds.

Coln, Clemson heavyweight, floored Millen, of Virginia, in the second round, and in the next event Vaughn, clever North Carolina bantam, scored a knockout over West, of South Carolina, in the first round.

In defeating Kammerer, of Virginia Tech, Russell, Georgia featherweight, registered his second victory of the day. The tournament night program opened with a knockout bout, Ted Miller, of Florida, Southern Conference title holder, flooring Trennis, of Virginia Tech, in the second round.

The featherweight scrap between Goodrich, of North Carolina, and Smith, of Duke, was a slashing affair, both men taking considerable punishment. The Tarheel entry won by a close margin.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MARCH, MARCH ON DOWN THE FIELD.

The National Football Rules Association has been at it again.

• • • •

The association has made its regular February discovery that a few people had been able to understand last year's rules and has acted immediately.

• • • •

Last season the rules committee thought it had jumbled up the game to a point where nobody, including the players, knew what it was all about, but this wasn't quite true, and so American football will be played this fall entirely under the Einstein theory.

• • • •

Only five men in the world are capable of understanding the Einstein business. That makes about three more than are capable of understanding modern football.

• • • •

The committee intends to keep making changes until even these two are baffled and give up.

• • • •

Most of the new rules are too intricate for public digestion, but the board has made one rule that everybody can understand. It has made the fumbled football dead at the point of recovery, except after passes. In other words, when a Harvard runner drops the ball a Yale or Princeton player can't scoop it up and run with it. Thus the only play left in football that the spectators could follow has been made null and void.

• • • •

When a runner fumbled a ball and an opponent picked it up and dashed down the field with it, the cash customers could always rise and cheer with a clear idea why they were cheering. This has been very painful to the rules makers for years and it was a foregone conclusion something would be done about it.

• • • •

This season when some stupid drops a ball it will carry the same thrill to the fans that might be had if the team captain's socks fell down. There will be no excitement. Anything like a big dramatic moment will be unconstitutional. Running after the loose ball will not only be illegal; it will be unethical, ungentlemanly and highly nonsensical.

• • • •

Both teams will stand around and let the silly old ball roll all over the lot. Who cares? Nobody. When it stops rolling it will be picked up by a bald gentleman in white pants and put in play again on the spot where it first touched the ground. The other side will get the ball, but it will get it in a gentlemanly, dignified, scholarly and peace-loving manner. There will be no rough stuff.

• • • •

There is a report that in 1930 no tackling of a player with a ball will be tolerated. The player with the ball will signal his intention to go through by yelling "Fore!" And the other players will let him through, as in golf.

• • • •

• • • •

Ima Dodo says she is glad Uncle Sam is to build fifteen new cruisers as she is tired of seeing the old ones in the movie house news reels.

The lunchroom in the House of Representatives, closed as unsanitary, has been reopened with sanitary drinking cups and prophylactic sandwiches. We still hold that a germ that would bite a congressman can not be deterred.

Tunnel Discovery Thwarts Escapes

Passageway Dug Under Sing Sing Prison Yard Lacked Few Feet to Road.

Ossining, N. Y., March 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.). A tunnel 40 feet long and 4 feet square leading from a potato cellar under the mess hall in Sing Sing to within 4 feet of the outer wall was discovered this afternoon by Principal Keeper John Sheehy. If the prisoners had been able to continue their excavations without detection for another week a wholesale break would undoubtedly have followed.

The only clews are two hammers, two trowels and six flashlights found in the tunnel.

Although about 600 cubic feet of earth must have been removed from the tunnel, no trace of it could be found.

Prisoners are allowed to spend their evenings in the mess hall, but they are forbidden to enter the cellar. It is believed that some of them managed to steal away unobserved and pursue their subterranean operations at odd intervals over a period of months.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Jazz Marriage.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I guess you won't feel much sympathy for me when I tell you that both my husband and I were thoroughly "plastered" the night we got married. We did not know what it was all about, and that is the truth. We had gone together for two years and then broke off, as we were only 19 years old. He rushed another girl and I was terribly upset. I went away to school and when I came back the very first night we met we got married. I was wildly in love.

Now I do not know whether he wanted her instead, or whether he thinks I knew what I was doing better than he did that night, but he has been horrible to me ever since. In the first place his father has made him go to work, and that made him furious. Then my folks would not let us live with them, so his people had to take us. They have forgiven us and seem all right to me, but they will not interfere to make him stop "cheating." He sees the other girl. It is so low of her, but she makes no secret of it and, in fact, tells every one how I "wrecked poor Junior's whole life."

Last week she "loaned" him $100. A friend of hers told me and I asked him about it. He said "not that it is any business of yours, but it is a fact, she did." Now, I know that was to pay for some party they threw or something. All her friends act exactly as if I had eloped with her husband. I am treated as if I were the one who tried to break up a home. He is asked to everything and the whole crowd is putting me straight.

I do not care for the crowd or their doings. But I feel terrible that his folks are not with me. I spoke to his mother and she only said that in my place she would offer him his freedom again.

Well, I saw a lawyer yesterday, a friends of dad's, and he said there were too many "kids" divorced already and said he would talk to him. I need money and clothes, and I need consolation, and all I have is a place to sleep and eat. I can't sleep when he stays out till 4 a. m. and I can't eat when I know the people who supply the food feel that I slipped something over. I thought the lawyer would fix everything and now I seem as far away as ever.

I really loved him when I married him, but I see now that he has no character or honor, yet I would stick if he would do even half-way right.

"JAZZY BRIDE."

I think the attorney's offer to talk to your husband evidences a very decent attitude. Apparently he feels you have insufficient grounds to win a divorce in the first place, and that in the second place when your affections are so deeply involved a reconciliation and a bolstering up of your husband's sense of manhood is a better solution. The average youth of today is an irresponsible nitwit utterly unqualified for marriage. They vary merely in the degree of their unfitness. I think your husband might derive great benefit from a talk such as your attorney offers to give him. Accept the offer. And meanwhile act as if you were loved, and entitled to be loved. You have committed no crime, so look the world in the face, smile!

REMETERING RULED ILLEGAL IN HEARING ON SALE OF POWER

Practice Contrary to Terms of Contract, Utilities Commission Finds.

NO DECISION IS MADE ON PREVENTION PLAN

Current Bought at Wholesale and Retailed at Increase, Company Declares.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday ruled against the practice of some owners of large buildings who buy electricity at wholesale rates and then submeter the current to tenants at higher rates, the Commission holding that this practice is contrary to the terms of its order setting up a rate schedule for the Potomac Electric Power Co.

In handing down the formal opinion, the Commission failed to state what steps it will take to end the practice. It was explained on behalf of the commission however, that enforcement of the contracts the company has with owners of buildings who submeter current for profit, will be left with the company. If the Potomac Electric Power Co. finds difficulty in enforcing its individual contracts, it is expected that it will apply to the commission for relief.

The practice of submetering electric current was taken up by the commission at a public hearing last December. The practice was assailed by power company representatives.

Buyers Represented.

Representatives of apartment building owners spoke in favor of continuing the practice and are expected to take the matter of the commission's ruling into the courts before abiding by the order.

In its formal opinion, the commission called attention to the following clause in the rate schedule for 1929, which reads in part:

"The consumer agrees not to use the current for any purpose or for any additional equipment other than that provided for in this contract without first having notified the company in writing and having received the company's consent thereto. It is expressly understood and agreed that electric service furnished to the consumer shall be for his, her or their own use and may not be remetered (submetered) by the consumer for the purpose of selling electric service to another or others."

The Utilities Commission found that this clause, designed to limit the purchase of electric current to the customer's own use, was reasonable, as it has for its purpose the confining of use of electricity to that for which the schedule of rates under which the current is purchased was intended.

Makes Second Ruling.

In referring to a ruling of the District Supreme Court in which the Potomac Electric Power Co. is compelled to use one-half of any excess earnings over 7½ per cent on fair value each year to the reduction of rates, the commission said:

"Under this agreement prompt reduction in rates have been made each year since 1924. It can hardly be questioned that the net revenues of any year (which determine the rates for the following year) would be affected by the fact of whether the current is sold to the ultimate consumer at rates which are proper for him to pay or is sold to a middleman at rates which may or may not apply to the ultimate consumer to whom he sells. The question of whether submetering for sale shall continue, is, therefore, clearly affected with a public interest."

Officers Are Selected By Navy Relief Society

Officers of the Navy Relief Society, welfare organization of the service, elected for the coming year, were announced yesterday, as follows: President, Admiral Charles P. Hughes, chief of naval operations; first vice president, Rear Admiral Sidney P. Staunton, retired; second vice president, Rear Admiral Robert S. Griffin, retired; third vice president, Miss H. L. Sargent; secretary and treasurer, Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, retired.

The society was reported in excellent condition and as having accomplished much for the care of widows, orphans, and dependent mothers of officers and enlisted men during the past fiscal year.

Druggist Reports $142 Stolen From His Safe

J. Fenton Collins, a druggist at 2000 Rhode Island avenue northeast, reported to police that a safe in his store had been opened Thursday night and $142 in cash stolen. Checks made to Collins Pharmacy totaling $15, were also missing, he reported.

Entrance to the store is believed to have been gained throught a rear door, Collins said. This door had been left unlocked. The store was unoccupied from noon Thursday until 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

Coolidge Is Invited To Try Gulf Fishing

President Coolidge yesterday was invited by Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, to visit that State at some convenient time and enjoy the Gulf Coast fishing. The invitation was extended during the course of a visit by the senator who had called to bid the President good-by.

The President expressed the hope that he would find opportunity after leaving office to visit Mississippi. The State is one of three which he has not visited, Louisiana and Arkansas being the others.

POLICEMAN SHOOTS SLAYER OF WOMAN

"BAD MAN'S" GUN FAILED

After shooting and killing a woman and wounding a girl, Ernest Henderson, self-styled colored "bad man," yesterday was slain by Policeman Frederick W. Bauer, of the Tenth Precinct. The policeman reported that he fired in self-defense after Henderson had snapped his pistol at him.

The victims of Henderson's pistol included a girl and her mother, both colored. The mother, Emma Brown, is dead, while the daughter, Jeannette Rice, is at Casualty Hospital with a bullet wound in the lung. The triple shooting was staged in the house at 34 Logan place northwest, the home of the two women.

Bauer had just placed William Milton Potts, 15 years old, of 26 Logan place northwest, under arrest in connection with the theft of an automobile when he heard shots in the house nearby. He told his prisoner to wait and investigated. He found Emma Brown lying in a pool of blood on the front steps and the Rice girl unconscious on the floor of a back room.

As the policemen entered, Henderson turned the revolver upon him and pulled the trigger. It snapped on a faulty cartridge. Before Henderson could make another attempt to fire, Bauer shot him three times.

Henderson and the Brown woman were pronounced dead by William Ryan, of Sibley Hospital.

Neighbors said that Henderson had quarreled with the Rice girl Thursday night and had threatened to shoot her, leaving only when driven away. He returned yesterday morning and renewed the argument, after which the shooting occurred.

Henderson was employed as a janitor at the Park View School.

Expected Rush Decides Judge Schuldt to Start at 9 to Clear Docket.

The Federal branch of the court will be opened to dispose of preliminary hearings in felony cases and accept pleas in liquor cases. The court will be opened an hour earlier than usual, at 9 o'clock, in order to clear the day's docket before the ceremonies at the noon hour.

Patrolman A. E. Fredette testified he arrested the artist in the downtown section after finding him in a state of "high spirits." Moore then took the stand and astounded the court with a statement that "I never knew it was against the law to get drunk, your honor."

Judge Schuldt assured him that his education on the point was lacking and then liberated him on his personal recognizance upon his promise not to repeat the offense again.

SLAUGHTER HOUSE PLANS EXPLAINED

N. Auth Company's Statement Claims Arlington Plant Not Objectionable.

OTHER SITES CONSIDERED

The N. Auth Provisio Co. yesterday issued the following statement with respect to plans it has had to erect a modern packing plant in Arlington County:

"Our company has considered an invitation to erect a packing house on its properties situated near Relee, on Columbia pike, in Arlington County, Va. Due to a misunderstanding of the facts surrounding the establishment of such a plant, it appears that some opposition to the project has developed.

"Interested parties opposing the erection of the proposed plant at the location referred to have offered to make available to us a suitable site other than the one mentioned and we desire to consider such offers in so far as they are fair and reasonable and to cooperate with our patrons and the public generally to the fullest extent in this respect.

"The N. Auth Provision Co. is a Washington institution. Its officers are Washingtonians. They and the company have always assisted in every possible way in the upbuilding and beautifying of the community. They and the company are intensely interested in maintaining our city and its environs in keeping with the dignity of the Nation's Capital, and their long experience in the packing industry qualifies them to state that the modern plant which they intend to erect would in no way prove objectionable to the residents of that city or of Arlington County.

"Our application for a permit to erect the proposed packing house will be presented to the board of supervisors of Arlington County, Va., on April 18, 1929, and the public is assured that any such offers submitted to us before that date will have our careful and earnest consideration. The company sincerely hopes that before the date mentioned the matter of locating our proposed packing house will be disposed of to the satisfaction of those interested."

Mrs. Hert Returns Home After Mishap

G. O. P. Committee Official Kept in Bed by Wrist She Broke in Fall.

Mrs. A. T. Hert, of Louisville, whose wrist was broken when she slipped and fell on the street here Thursday, was able, although still suffering considerable pain, to return yesterday from Emergency Hospital to her home at 1785 Massachusetts avenue. She was obliged, however, to remain abed after reaching her residence.

As soon as they heard of the mishap yesterday President and Mrs. Coolidge sent flowers to Mrs. Hert. Inquiries also were made on behalf of President-elect and Mrs. Hoover. Senator and Mrs. Sackett visited Mrs. Hert at the hospital this morning. A number of tlegrams were received.

It is still doubtful whether Mrs. Hert will be able to take part in an extensive round of social and official functions for which she was scheduled, these including the task of presiding at a farewell tea to be given by Mrs. Coolidge Sunday afternoon, a reception Senator and Mrs. Sackett are to give on the same afternoon for Kentucky visitors in honor of Gov. Sampson, and events planned by the Republican national committee, of which Mrs. Hert is vice chairman.

Amnesia Victim, Identified, Insistent He Is Not Soldier

Despite identification, "John Doe," who was taken to Gallinger Hospital Thursday night suffering from amnesia, steadfastly denied that he is David Gardner, 22-year-old private at Bolling Field. He was transferred yesterday to Walter Reed Hospital.

Gardner's Army record shows that he enlisted in New York, his home, in December, 1927, and was sent to Fort Myer, Va. About a year ago he was transferred to the Air Corps and was stationed at Bolling Field, where he has been firing a boiler.

Thursday night, about 9 o'clock, he walked up to Policeman J. L. Rinker, who was directing traffic at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest and announced that he did not know who he was or what city he was in. Rinker took him to headquarters, where he was examined and records made for identification.

Bolling Field officers, who saw his picture in yesterday morning's newspapers identified him tentatively at Gallinger and later the identification was made positive through Army records. Still, Gardner insists that his name is entirely unfamiliar to him. He has no living relatives.

LOADED LIQUOR CAR AND 2 MEN SEIZED AFTER BRIEF CHASE

Police Find 125 Gallons Concealed Aboard Altered Automobile.

BIG SUPPLY INTENDED FOR INAUGURAL CROWD

Usual Haul, Driver Tells Officers, Has Been Only 75 Gallons.

One hundred and twenty-five gallons of kick were knocked out of the inauguration yesterday afternoon when a high-powered sedan containing that much alleged alcohol in tins, cleverly concealed under the floor board, was captured at Fourteenth and Q streets northwest by Sergt. George Little's liquor squad.

Solomon Paper, 27, 431 Frankmore avenue, Baltimore, and Benny Klein, 22, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were arrested and charged with transportation and possession. Both were held in the Sixth Precinct station.

Klein bitterly denied any connection with the alleged liquor, according to Sergt. Little. He stated that he had merely "hitched a ride" and didn't know the car contained contraband. Paper, it was said, is known to the police and had once before been chased when suspected of hauling liquor, but escaped.

After the two had been taken to the station house and the car carefully examined, 22 five-gallon tins and 15 one-gallon tins were found concealed under the floorboard and rear seat. A special, metal lined compartment had been built under the framework of the car, braced by metal bars.

It was this elaborate construction, police said, which led them to pursue the automobile. They pointed out that the running board had been lowered two inches, the regular springs replaced with truck springs, the gasoline tank lowered several inches and the battery box placed on the running board instead of being concealed, as is customary.

No difficulty was experienced in overtaking the car because of heavy traffic. When the contents were discovered, police said, Paper explained that he usually hauled only 75 gallons at a time, but on account of Inauguration had increased his load to meet the demand.

With Sergt. Little at the time of the arrests were Officers T. O. Montgomery, G. C. Deyoe and Leo Murray.

The Federation of Citizens Associations was asked last night to take up the matter of traffic violations by buses in a resolution adopted at the meeting of the Chillum Heights Citizens Association in the Woodburn School.

The association asked for improvements on New Hampshire avenue from Blair road to the District line. The dumping of trash in various parts of the District was also criticized. Finis D. Morris, president, presided.

The group consisted apparently of a chieftain and three persons killed to accompany him in death, according to McCracken. The Stoll-McCracken expedition, which discovered the mummies, also collected museum specimens of the huge Arctic sea lion during a cruise north of Bering Strait.

Judge Frees Bride, Charged by Mother

Hugh Miller, Post Staff Photographer.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM SCHLORB, whose marriage at Upper Marlboro, is faced with possible annulment because of parental disapproval. The bride's mother has sworn to charges that the husband did not give the correct age for his bride.

Desire to Live With Mate Not "Incorrigibility," Court Rules.

The desire of the young bride to remain with her husband can hardly be considered sufficient evidence to convict her of incorrigibility, Judge J. Chew Sheriff decided yesterday in Upper Marlboro branch of Prince Georges County police court, in releasing Mrs. Pansy Schlorb.

The girl had been arraigned on a charge of incorrigibility preferred by her mother, Mrs. James Donaldson, 4406 Grant road northwest, who also obtained a warrant charging the husband, William Schlorb, 21 years old, Suitland, Md., with kidnaping and perjury. The mother alleges that the girl is 17 years of age and that Schlorb gave her age as 18 in securing a marriage license at Upper Marlboro.

The attorney for the young couple, Leroy Pumphrey, of Meadows, Md., unfolded a strange tale in police court yesterday. According to his story, they were married December 28 at Upper Marlboro by the Rev. F. E. McManus. The following day the girl's mother swore out warrants before Justice of the Peace William Naecker, of Suitland, Md.

According to the story of the girl, the justice of the peace told her that she had her choice of returning to her mother or going to jail until she was of age. Judge Naecker also told her, she said, that he would send the husband to the penitentiary for life. The judge also said that he had annulled the marriage, Mrs. Schlorb declared, and she decided to return to her mother.

Three days later she returned to the home of the husband at Suitland, having found out meanwhile that a justice of the peace could not annul a marriage.

The mother again appeared before Justice of the Peace Naecker and swore out warrants charging the boy with perjury and the girl with incorrigibility.

Thereupon Attorney Pumphrey secured a change of venue to Justice of the Peace Thomas D. Griffith at Forestville, who held the girl for action of the police court and continued the perjury hearing until next Thursday.

SENATE MAY VOTE CAPITOL EXTENSION

Filibuster Breaking Paves the Way for Decision on Grounds Proposal.

MERGER MEASURE NEXT

The breaking of the eleven-hour filibuster in the Senate last night has paved the way for action today on the bill to extend the Capitol Grounds to Union Station. The bill passed the House at the last session.

Next on the Senate calendar after this measure is the joint resolution to authorize a merger of the local street car companies. This, however, is almost certain to precipitate a filibuster.

It also appears that there may be a filibuster to prevent confirmation of the nominations of former Senator Irvine Lenroot, of Wisconsin, and Henry H. Glassie, of Chevy Chase, the first to be a member of the Court of Customs Appeals and the latter to be a member of the District Supreme Court.

Three District bills are scheduled to be acted on in the House today. One would convert the Ford Theater into a Lincoln museum and veterans' headquarters, another would relocate Michigan avenue, and the third provides for two incinerators here to take care of the city's refuse. The last two already have passed the Senate.

The bill to extend the Capitol Grounds is regarded by officials as one of the most important before Congress. If it passes, the area between the Capitol and the depot will be transformed into a magnificent park and the much-abused Government Hotels will disappear.

Harley P. Wilson, sponsor of the street car merger, haunted the Capitol all day yesterday and, judging from what he saw and heard, he has little hope that the resolution will be enacted into law at this session.

Prompt enactment by the United States Senate of the Cramton bill which provides park lands in nearby Maryland and Virginia, was urged at a meeting of the executive and advisory committees of the Montgomery County Civic Federation yesterday at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, Washington.

MAN SPENDS 2 DAYS SEALING FLAT, THEN TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Careful Preparation Shown in Suicide of Patent Examiner's Aid.

APARTMENT IS RENTED AS CHAMBER OF DEATH

Wife Blames Ill Health; Body Found by Cop, Who Smells Escaping Fumes.

Surrounded by evidence of careful preparation, Earl E. Mann, 43-year-old assistant patent examiner, of 1401 Fairmont street northwest, was found dead from illuminating gas yesterday afternoon in the kitchen of an apartment he had rented for the purpose only two days previously at 1440 Newton street northwest.

The condition of the room indicated that Mann had spent the entire two days of his occupancy of the apartment preparing for his tragic act. The window and door of the tiny kitchen were closed fast. Every crack and crevice was packed with raw cotton and putty. Even the keyhole has plugged. Gas was flowing from open burners of the small gas stove with which the kitchen was equipped.

In spite of the man's efforts to make the room airtight it was the odor of escaping gas which led to discovery of his act. Policeman W. S. Buchanan, of the Tenth Precinct, was walking past the Newton street house when he smelled escaping gas.

Rushing into the building, he broke in the door of Mann's apartment and found the body lying on the floor. He called Emergency Hospital. Dr. J. E. Lewis, who responded, pronounced Mann dead.

Mrs. Ethel Mann, his widow, told police that her husband had been despondent over ill health for some time. Yesterday morning, she said, he told her he was going for a walk about 10 o'clock.

She heard no more from him until she was notified of his death.
